Bank Bandits Are Captured

EUROPE NEAR MILITARY MOVE

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Europe today appears nearer to actual military moves, which may lead to war, than at any time since 1918.

In Paris, Premier Poincare was in conference with Premier Theunis of Belgium and Marquis Della Torreta of Italy, endeavoring to line up these nations to cooperate with France in marching deeper into Germany. He also requested Chairman Barthou of the reparations commission to call an immediate session to declare Germany in default for non-delivery of coal and possibly nitrates, thus giving France legal liberty of action under the Versailles treaty.

Military leaders conferred with Poincare during the night planning troop moves.

Premier Bonar Law and the British delegates returned to London, having washed their hands of the whole affair, but Sir John Bradbury remained as British representative on the reparations commission, withdrawing his resignation. It was semi-officially stated that the French plan of action would be changed as far as the method of taking securities is concerned but there would be no change in the nature of the securities to be taken. (This may mean the French would not send troops into Germany at first but would endeavor to collect what they claim thru establishing new customs houses at the gates of Germany.)

Meanwhile the situation in the near east continues grave. The allies are drawing up a treaty for presentation to the Turks, which is declared to be essential to peace. The Turks may refuse to sign. Turkish troops are rallying to the colors under Mustapha Kemal's latest call to arms, and a British fleet has rushed at full speed to Constantinople.

WASHINGTON Jan. 5—The cabinet today discussed all phases of the grave possibilities involved in occupation of the Rhuhr by the French, and it was understood even made tentative plans for getting the American troops on the Rhine out of reach of any possible entanglements. Whether such action would take the form of withdrawing the force to a safe distance from the Rhine or immediate return to this country was not disclosed.

PEACEFUL MEN WERE TARGETS

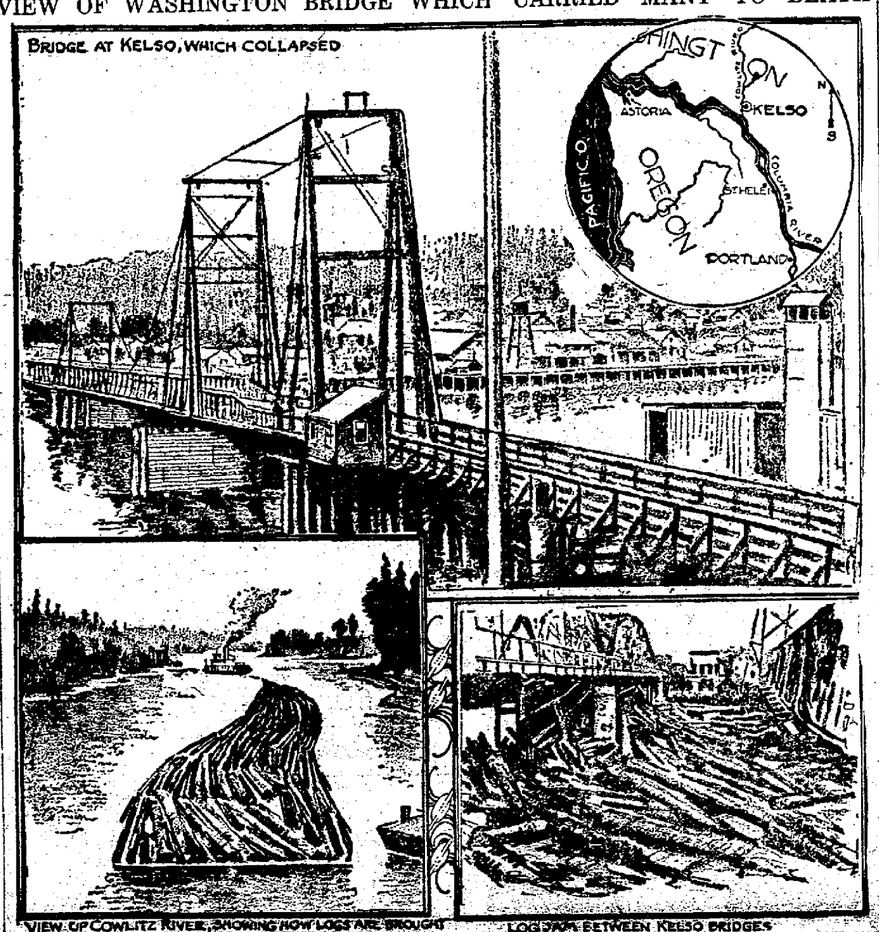

MARION, Ill., Jan. 5.—John Crampton, union miner, testifying in the Herrin massacre trial today declared two citizens were on their way to make peaceable negotiations with officials of the Lester mine June 21, the day before the riots, when aremd guards turned them back with a volley of shot.

"These two men were unarmed," Crampton said.

Crampton on cross-examination said hundreds of men, many carrying guns, were congregating in the vicinity of the Lester mine on the afternoon of June 21.

This mob, swarming in the neighboring fields, fired into the mine thruout the afternoon, the witness said.

WOULD TRADE FOR ISLANDS

REED SUGGESTS EUROPE EXCHANGE LAND FOR DEBTS.

Trinidad and Bermuda Belonging to Great Britain and Lesser Antilles and Other Possessions of France Included.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The president woud be authorized to communicate with Great Britain and France regarding transition of their island possessions in the West Indies in payment of war debts under a resolution introduced in the senate today by Senator Reed, Missouri.

While Reed did not mention war debts in his resolution and merely suggested that the president ascertain whether Great Britain and France were ready to enter negotiations, it is known he favors a plan whereby the two European nations would negotiate a trade of West Indian possessions for the war debt.

The resolution mentions Trinidad and Bermuda, belonging to Great Britain and Martinique, the Lesser Antilles, Grande Terre, Guadeloupe, and Marie Galante belonging to France.

Reed asked that the resolution lie on the table to be called up at the earliest possible moment.

County Agent Davison, of Adams county, was the only newly elected officer, having been chosen by the poultry men to serve as a director.

BURSUM ABANDONS EFFORTS

Declares He Will Later Seek Pension Increases Only for Aged Widows of Veterans.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Senator Bursum, New Mexico, today abandoned efforts to organize the senate to override President Harding's veto of the Bursum pension bill.

Bursum declared that he would later seek pension increases for aged widows of veterans only.

UNCOMMON SENSE

In every office and shop are men, and women too, who have filled higher positions than they occupy now.

There is a newspaper office in New York where five men who have held high executive positions are drearily doing routine work—for not very much pay.

There has been no conspiracy against these men. They have not been put out of their positions by relatives or the owner, or shouldered aside by office politicians.

They were fairly capable of fulfilling the duties they once had to discharge.

But they could not keep it up.

Very soon they tired. The pace was no faster, but they could not continue it.

So now, self-admitted failures, they take an easier but less satisfactory way of earning their living.

Keeping it up is the hard thing in the game of life.

One discovers that in every business and in every calling.

Scores of writers were as prominent as James M. Barrie when they all started in the literary game in London nearly thirty years ago. Only three or four could keep it up. The rest, once famous, are now forgotten.

Barrie, who wrote better at fifty that he did at thirty, is still doing his greatest work.

He could keep it up.

Possibly in his case there was greater native talent than in that of the others.

But he did not depend too much on his talent. He put in longer hours developing it than did his colleagues.

And when it was acknowledged and made him famous and prosperous, instead of resting on his laurels he kept right on at the same old desk, studying men and life, reading thinking, till he was able to put human character on the printed page in such a way that every reader could see in it something of himself or his neighbor.

All men who have seized and continued to occupy prominent positions have been able to keep up their pace.

That is real success. Attaining a high place ie only temporary success and really amounts to nothing.

As keeping as well as getting is necessary to prosperity, so is it necessary to the occupancy of any worthwhile position in the world.

Better Church Architecture.

There has been much written and even more said recently on the subject of our church architecture, and the Episcopal church and other denominations have taken up the matter in a vigorous protest against the generally poor quality of church buildings and organized for action toward their betterment.

The church of whatever denomination is nearly always a conspicuous landmark and in every city and town in the country there are many examples of the way a church should not be built, looked at from any other point of view than that any place may be good enough for a house of worship.

There is no other great power for the advancement of spiritual welfare of a people that calls for a more intimate uniting of beauty of thought and beauty and fitness in its place of expression.

The old Gothic builders manifested in their ascending arches and towers and in the lovely detail in both interior and exterior the spiritual aspiration that dominated their ideas of worship, and even those beyond the pale and unresponsive to the purely religious appeal of these wonderful churches are yet moved by the dignity and perfect adaptation of these edifices for their purpose. The best art of medieval times went into their building, the most skilled artisans gave of their best, and if not always, maybe, a labor of love combined with a feeling of reverence for the work in hand there was apparently the pride of creation, of participation in the uplifting of a great monument of beauty.

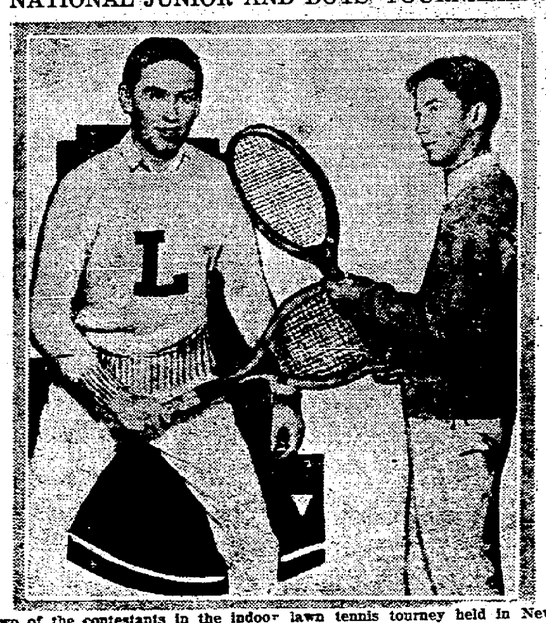

We are a far cry from the spirit of the Gothic times, from the methods of building that prevailed in the days of the great Gothic cathedrals, but religion is still a power in the world and houses of worship are still the centers of influence in many communities.

We are building Gothic churches today, and the style seems especially appropriate for the cathedral church, and in the hands of men steeped in the Gothic traditions the style takes on a noble and inspiring dignity.

Both Mr. Cram and Mr. Goodhue have given us worthy examples of modern Gothic, and they have long stood at the very front of the Gothic tradition in our contemporary church architecture.—Scribner's Magazine.

WOULD TAX DIVIDENDS

BROOKHART ANNOUNCES NEW BILL TO BE INTRODUCED.

Statement Is Made After Gasoline Price Committee Finds Non-Taxable Dividends Are Declared.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A bill will be introduced in the senate to tax stock dividends, Senator Brookhart of Iowa announced today following testimony before the gasoline price investigation committee that huge non-taxable stock dividends had been declared by the larger oil corporations to evade payment of taxes.

Brookhart also referred to reports of the federal trade commission showing that in 1922 tax-free dividends to the amount of $2,149,151,425 had been declared by 328 concerns. Standard Oil units were among the companies, Brookhart said.

Brookhart declared the burden of taxation should be lifted from the common people and distributed among these concerns enjoying huge profits. Figures obtained from the federal trade commission by Brookhart showed stock dividends among Standard Oil units in 1922 as follows:

New Jersey $393,353,200; New York $150,000,000; California $100,971,111; Indiana $140,000,000; Ohio, $14,000,000.

Other corporations to declare huge stock dividends Brookhart said are:

Atlantic Refining company, 900 per cent; Du Pont De Nemours company, 50 per cent; Standard Steel Car company, 900 per cent; Victor Talking Machine company, 600 per cent; Yellow cab company 300 per cent.

The supreme court some time ago declared that the provision in the 1917 revenue bill providing for taxing of stock dividends unconstitutional.

The Magnolia Petroleum company of Dallas, Texas, has paid dividends amounting to $89,564,261.23 since its organization, William C. Proctor, treasurer, testified before the special senate committee investigating gasoline prices.

Of the amount $62,381,125 was paid in stock dividends and $27,183,136.23 in cash, Proctor said.

The capital stock of the organization increased from $2,450,000 to $120,000,000 in the same period, he said.

ROBBERS YIELD WITHOUT FIGHT

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Jan. 5.—Posse chasing the bandits who early today attempted to rob the Maurice, Ia., bank believe they have the ring leaders of the gang in the capture of Earl Laverty and Elmer Dingman, both well known in Sioux City underworld circles, at McNally, Ia., this afternoon. The men surrendered without a fight when surrounded by a posse.

McNally is about five miles south of Hawarden, where the first pair of bandits was taken just before noon today by a posse under City Marshall Frank Conway. It is believed two more bandits are still at large. Hundreds of men are scouring the Sioux river country between Hawarden and Sioux City this afternoon in the hope of picking up the rest of the gang, one of whom is believed seriously, if not mortally wounded.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

Beatrice—Mrs Robert Coulter, pioneer resident of Beatrice, died at Burlington, Ia., according to word received here. The remains will be brought to Beatrice for burial.

Old Stuff and Bunc at That.

The president of the Chicago board of trade says prohibition has lowered the price of grain, the inference being that the bear gamblers haven't.

That is what the brewers and distillers began telling us about prohibition thirty years ago, while first one state and then another went "dry." Notwithstanding, grain prices on the whole continued to advance further than they receded in the quarter century preceding the war. Since that time the world has never seen such extreme need for breadstuffs and hasn't enough to eat today.

The California grape growers supposed, of course, that national prohibition would render their vineyards useless. Instead the demand for unfermented grapejuice, and the wider use of raisins as a food, requires them to grow five or six times as many grapes as formerly were turned into wine. In the same way the use of corn and malt grains has multiplied. Malted milk has an enormous sale.

John Barleycorn as a grain buyer never has been missed. The loss of his trade by farmers was almost immediately compensated for by an improved American standard of living, coincident and consequent upon the lessening of the drink evil. The president of the Chicago board of trade is talking bunc.—Capper's Weekly.

Fatal.

The auctioneer was endeavoring to dispose of a stock of cigars, of which the labels were undoubtedly the best part.

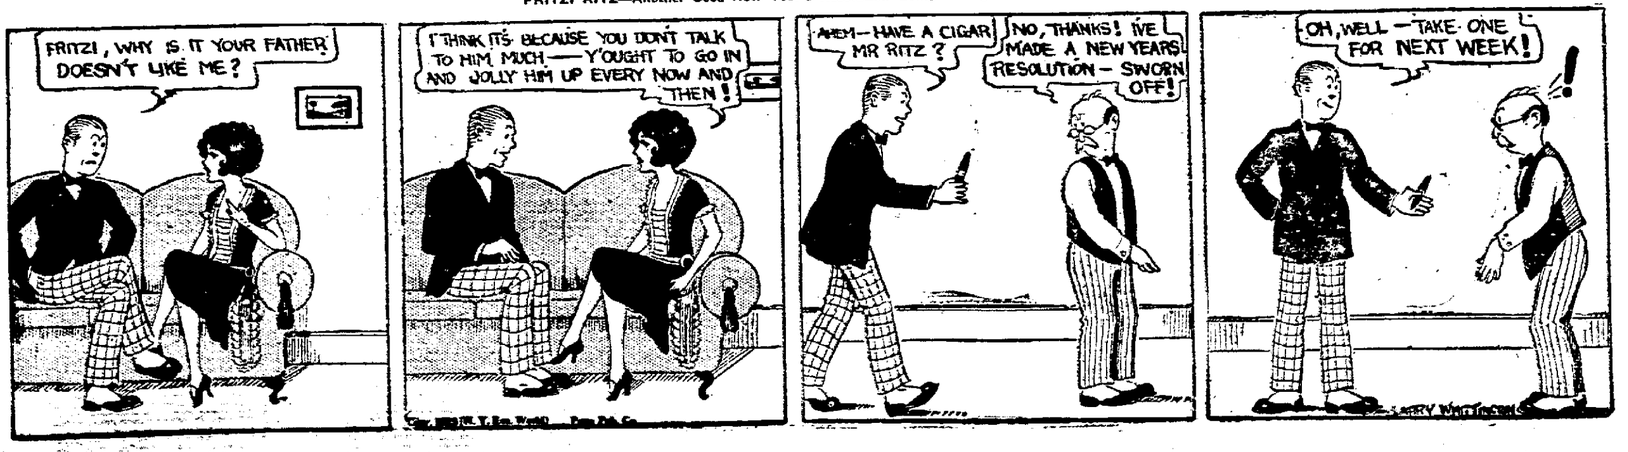

White was among the listeners and having sampled this particular line, was not quite in agreement with the auctioneer's recital of their virtues.

"Yes," said the auctioneer, waxing eloquent, "these cigars are absolutely without equal in this country today. You may go and pay three times the price, but you will never obtain better quality. In short, gentlemen, you can't get better; whatever you do, you can't get better."

White was unable to restrain himself any longer.

"No, you can't get better," he broke in. "I smoked one last week and I haven't recovered yet."—Chicago News.

PLAN ACTION AGAINST FOE

All Troops on Leave Recalled by the French.

PARIS WANTS NEW PARLEY

Would Invite Only Belgium and Italy to Discussion.

No Move Will Be Made by General Degoutte Until Orders Are Received From Paris, Following Mobilization.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—France mobilized her Rhine forces today, recalling all troops on leave from Mayence barracks.

General Degoutte ordered this action immediately word of the break down of the reparations conference reached the Rhineland. No military action against Germany will be taken, however, until orders are received from Paris.

France today planned conferences with Belgium and Italy looking to a possible joint move to collect reparations from Germany.

Great Britain will not be invited to this conference, if one is arranged.

The crisis will come January 15 when the next reparations payments by Germany fall due. The Cuno government is expected to ask a moratorium and Italy and Belgium, as well as France, are opposed to this.

Premier Poincare instructed Louis Barthou to call an immediate meeting of the reparations commission for notification of Germany's alleged default in coal payments.

John Braddbury, British member of the reparations commission, resigned. Two sessions therefore must be held under the Versailles treaty, to allow sufficient time for all to have a voice in the arrangements.

Then, well informed observers believe, the march on the Ruhr will begin.

French troops along the Rhine will be reinforced, it is believed, and an advance guard will push into Westphalia and occupy the richest German coal country.

Rests With France.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The fate of the American proposal for a commission or conference of experts to recommend a German reparations figure now rests squarely with France.

The proposal of the United States is before the French government and this country is waiting for a reply as to whether the plan is acceptable to France, it was declared authoritatively at the state department today.

The Nebraska Crop Growers' association, at its annual meeting Thursday, January 4, passed the following resolution dealing with the federal farm loan act:

"Whereas, the Borah bill lately introduced in the United States senate is an attack upon an integral part of the federal farm loan system, viz: The point stock land banks,

"Be it resolved that we are in favor of the federal farm loan system just as it stands, including federal land banks and joint stock land banks, except in so far as it relates to the limit in size of federal land bankloans;

"That we deprecate any other amendments to the act until the law has been tried by more years of experience;

"That we are in favor of removing tax exemption from the bonds of this system just as soon as the tax exemption has been removed from government, state and municipal bonds, and not before."

TWO YEARS FOR KATOS

FORMER MILLIGAN BANKER SENTENCED TO LEAVENWORTH.

Seventeen Bootleggers Given Fines and Jail Sentences Friday, Making Total of Eighty-four in a Month.

Adolph Kotas, former Milligan banker, was sentenced Friday to serve two years in Leavenworth prison, the penalty for forging endorsements on liberty bonds. Mr. Kotas was indicted by the last federal grand jury on complaint of a number of men whose bonds he had converted to his own use, and pleaded guilty last month. He gave Judge Munger a detailed explanation Friday of the irregularity that got him into trouble, and maintained that whatever he did was to save the bank and not for his own profit. The court, however, was unable to see past the fact that he had admitted forging other people's names on government bonds and keeping the money he got for them.

Seventeen confessed or convicted bootleggers were sentenced at the same session, none of them drawing penitentiary terms. This number brought the total to eighty-four since December 9, and a new grand jury is to start work Tuesday. Evidence shows that more than half the liquor offenders in Judge Munger's court have obtained their stock in Omaha, and many of them are residents of that city. Incidentally, while listening to the pleas offered by some of the booze merchants as to their previous respectability, Judge Munger remarked that the fact of never before having been arrested didn't mean so much in Omaha as elsewhere!

Wiliam Specht, former proprietor of the Little Gold Dust soft drink parlor, closed last year by federal injunction, and associate of Eric Balderson, now doing time in Leavenworth for bootlegging, received one of the heaviest sentences in the bootleg class, a year in the Lancaster county jail. The same penalty was imposed on Ben Nottingham, indicted by the grand jury for conspiracy, and charged with selling John Crees the liquor found when the Little Gem bakery was raided. His attorney said he pleaded guilty to save his wife from being charged with possession of liquor, and that he was not able to work. Officers had told the court, however, that the man was strong enough to put up a good fight. Leroy Patterson, indicted with Nottingham, was let off with sixty days in the Dodge county jail.

One year in the Dodge county jail was the sentence of Ben Westcott, one of a youthful paid who could not take warning from previous encounters with the law. Abe Dalevich, indicted with him, was given thirty days in the Adams county jail. Both are Sioux City boys.

Lafe H. Carter, South street druggist who pleaded guilty to two sales of alcohol, was given six months in the Lancaster jail, despite the eloquent pleas of his counsel, George R. Mann, and his neighbor, Judge Holmes. Carter offered an alibi putting all the blame on John Kidd, his clerk, a university student who was lately fined on the same charge. The court did not seem impressed, however, and took occasion to quote Carter's previous record, a rather lengthy one.

Paul Stratton, indicted for second offense of sale, was given a year in the Lancaster county jail on one

BRYAN SOON TO APPOINT

SUCCESSOR IN MIND FOR GUS HYERS' POSITION.

New Governor Replies to Query About Foreign Language—Knows of No Effort to Change the Law.

Governor Charles W. Bryan dodged a big crowd in the public reception room Friday morning by entering his private office from a side corridor. It was his first day in the gubernatorial chair. The reception room contained many well known Nebraskans including Arthur Mullen, democratic politician who has assumed the role of guardian angel to every democratic governor since Shallenbarger's time down to the administration of Morehead and Neville. Among the callers were those who only desire a moment of the governor's time and who stay until the governor's secretary calls time on them.

Jefferson H. Broady was going thru all the motions of being an efficient secretary and able legal adviser to the governor without in fact having a commission or a bond for $10,000 as required by law. "I would not pay the premium on a bond for the office," he said.

The first official act of Governor Bryan was to sign a commission issued to J. H. Presson as clerk in the executive office. His second was to sign a license and approve a bond for an Omaha warehouse company that stores goods other than grain.

Language Question.

Governor Bryan's attention was called to the state of mind in which some people find themselves because he had not mentioned the foreign language question in his message to the legislature.

"I know of no action toward a change in the present law," he said. "The language question was not in the campaign and why should I mention it in my message? I have heard nothing about it and know of no movement for a change in the law."

When Governor Bryan entered his office he found a fine large mahogany table with chairs adn a settee but no office desk. The desk used by Governor McKelvie was his own property and it was taken away before the new governor came in. Land Commissioner Dan Swanson who looks after the furnishing of state offices, started out early Friday to buy an office desk for the governor. Flowers from admiring friends graced the governor's desk Friday. The table now in the governor's office will be suitable for meetings of his proposed council of state officers if the legislature creates such a body.

Bootleggers To Be Cared For.

When asked about the vacation of the office of state sheriff by Gus Hyers and the discontinuance of the office force in what is known as the law enforcement department Governor Bryan explained that it was understood all along that the office force of Mr. Hyers' department was to be discontinued but that Mr. Hyers had promised to remain temporarily.

"Later by mutual arrangement with Hyers his office was discontinued Thursday and by direction Mr. Cole checked him over his property. In regard to who is to look after bootleggers today I have enough confidence in local and federal officers to believe that violators of the law will be looked after. The governor himself is head of the law enforcement. You know there is no law authorizing such a position as state sheriff. The law authorizes the governor to call for such help as he needs to enforce liquor laws and laws against theft of automobiles. I will soon make an appointment relating to law enforcement."

Governor Bryan had nothing to say in regard to the appointment of a state tax commissioner.

NEW POLICY OF ONE CODE DEPARTMENT

Acting Secretary Mayer of Department of Agriculture Urges Cooperation With the Public.

Acting Secretary J. W. Mayer of the department of agriculture announced Friday that the policy of his department is to instruct all inspectors to cooperate with manufacturers, business men and others with whom they come in contact.

"I expect inspectors to be friends of business men instead of assuming to be policemen," said Mr. Mayer. "In the past the efficiency of an inspector has been measured by the number of arrests he makes. The number of arrests or prosecutions is no longer the In a letter to inspectors Acting Secretary Mayer says: "I shall request that each and every one of you give your undivided time to the state, following out your past record with the exception of prosecutions. This is a very delicate matter and sholud only be used as a last resort. On the other hand I believe much more can be accomplished by cooperation and I shall expect you to work along this line. I shall place my utmost confidence in every one of you to keep up the standard of the department of agriculture as it has been in the past and when the new secretary is appointed, I wish to be in a position whereby I can recommend you all, if you wish to remain in the service."

General Inspector H. I. Austin will take charge of the bureau of food, drugs and oil.

POSSE SEIZES TWO BANDITS

MEN WHO TRIED TO ROB MAURICE, IA., BANK CAPTURED.

Believed to Be Part of Gang of Six Who Engaged in Gun Battle With Officers in Early Morning.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Jan. 5—Reports received by telephone for Hawarden, Ia, state that two of the bandits who took part in the attempted bank robbery and gun battle at Maurice, Ia., early today have been captured at that place. The men have not been identified. Hawarden is about twenty-five miles west of Maurice.

The men gave their names as Frank Olson, twenty-two and Guy Brooks, twenty-seven. They surrendered to a posse led by City Marshall Conway of Hawarden. They were on foot and both were armed.

ORANGE CITY, Ia., Jan. 5.—Acting promptly when he found that all telephone and telegraph wires connections with Maurice, Ia., ten miles west of here had gone out soon after midnight, Sheriff Synhorst, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Dykstra and Dr. Verne Fisher of this city surprised what is believed to have been a party of six bandits just as they had fired one charge of dynamite in an attempt to break into the vault of the Sioux County State bank at Maurice. In the battle which followed both officers and the doctor were seriously wounded and one bandit is believed to have been mortally wounded. It is reported here that posses have surrounded the bandits in a tract of timberland near Maurice.

The bandits are believed to be from Sioux City, and are thought to have been driving a car stolen from T. D. Kennedy of that city last night.

As soon as Sheriff Synhorst and his party reached the main street in Maurice they were challenged by one of the bandit lookouts and the battle commenced at once. Using two shotguns, a rifle and three revolvers the sheriff's party fired at least 100 shots the bandits returning the fire hotly.

Sheriff Synhorst was struck in the arms and legs with seventeen heavy shot, and Deputy Dykstra was similarly wounded. Dr. Fisher was struck in the eye by a shot It is believed one of the bandits was mortally wounded.

The bandit car was so riddled by bullets that it was abandoned two miles from Maurice and another car was stolen from a farmer.

A posse of Sioux City police has joined in the man hunt.

DON'T WANT CLAIM PAID

HICKMAN CITIZENS OBJECT TO PAYING $2,500 TO CAMPBELL.

County Attorney Charles E. Matson Says No Additional Help Has Been Employed in Any of County's Cases.

Thirty-one citizens of the neighborhood of Hickman and Roca have signed and sent to the county commissioners a protest opposing allowance by the county board of the claim of Clinton J. Campbell for $2,500, which Attorney Campbell claims is due him for services performed for the county in the penitentiary-asylum paving loop litigation, in which the creation of the district was attacked. The case is said to have involved more than $450,000, and to have been one of the most important civil suits ever handled pertaining to the county.

The written protest, which reached the county commisisoners thru the mail Friday morning, objected to any allowance of the claim for the following reasons:

"If the county attorney and his two assistants gave all their time to county matters, they ought to be able to take care of the country's business.

"The county attorney has no authority whatever to hire outside counsel and thereby bind the county.

"The claim of Mr. Campbell is a claim against Mr. Matson and not against the county."

The names signed in protest are:

W. O. Buel	G. Walvoord
E. S. Buel	J. A. Brendle
H. F. Oelschlager	John H. Fischer
John Graff	William Leffer-
G. W. Pohlman	dink, sr.
Henry Klein	George Hempel
Ira Birt	William Elmund
Carl Ohlman	Fred Wissel
Guy Birt	A. A. Kuster
A. E. VanBurg	R. R. Ranch
E. C. Heckman	C. A. May
B. C. Offer	Elmer E. Boell
S. A. Young	Henry Essink
Elgie E. Lesslng	P. H. Hein
A. Scott	George Christiansen
Amos Meyer	R. F. Morrison

Mr. Matson, in effect, denies that he has contracted with Mr. Campbell to represent the county in the paving loop lawsuits. He said:

"Since I have been county attorney no additional counsel has been employed by me or by the county for the prosecution or defense of the action in both the state or county was interested in this jurisdiction. No request by me has been made for any such assistance.

"Insofar as paving district No. 38 is concerned, the litigation in both the district and supreme court was conducted by my office and the decision in favor of the district rendered in both courts.

"The fact that during the year 1922 more than $12,000 in fines and forfeitures were collected thru the instrumentality of this office, and 320 convictions and pleas of guilty had in criminal prosecutions, and that only one civil judgment in the amount of $250 was rendered against the county is evidence that the county's business has not been neglected, but has been diligently prosecuted and protected."

In a letter now held by the county clerk, written to the commissioners with the name of Mr. Campbell signed the statement is made that in addition to the $2,500 which Mr. Campbell asks he would also like a retainer for himself and Mr. Ankeny, both of whom, according to the letter, had been requested to represent the county in other litigation related to the penitentiary-asylum loop suits.

Mr. Campbell made no comment upon the protest, except to point out that during the litigation of the city of Lincoln against the gas company, Judge Morning was employed as outside counsel, in addition to the regular city attorney.

MORE CARS ARE PROMISED

Missouri Pacific President Wires That Situation in Territory Will Be Relieved.

The state railway commission received a telegram Friday from President Bush of the Missouri Pacific in response to its peremptory insistence that more cars be furnished for the grain shippers in that road's territory.

Mr. Bush wires that he has ordered a heavy movement of grain cars from the eastern to the western district, and that a large number of cars will be soon available.

The situation in Missouri Pacific territory has been bad. An average of one car a station per week has been the best it could do in recent weeks.

WARRANT OUT FOR ARREST OF DOCTOR

Dr. Mathews of Omaha Held Following Death of Miss Loretta McDermott, Bassett, Neb., Teacher.

OMAHA, Jan. 5.—A wararnt charging murder was issued today by County Attorney Beal for the arrest of Dr. J. T. Mathews, Omaha surgeon, following the death of Miss Loretta McDermott, twenty-five, Bassett, Neb. school teacher at a local hospital Thursday from an alleged criminal operation.

The charge was filed after a coroner's jury had found death was due to bichloride of mercury poisoning, administered after the illegal operation was performed.

Miss McDermott, in a death bed statement to Miss Josemina Rominge nurse, implicated an Ainsworth, Neb., man as being responsible for her condition.

"He wanted to marry me, but I told him I wasn't ready yet," Miss Rominge testified that Miss McDermott had told her.

The McDermott girl came to Omaha

DENY GUILT OF CONTEMPT

W. E. SHARP AND F. J. SHARP IN THE SUPREME COURT.

Trial Court Said They Had Violated Injunction Issued to Restrain Collection of Rates Attacked in Court.

Argument was heard before the supreme court Friday morning in the appeal of W. E. Sharp and Frank J. Sharp, head officers of the Royal Highlanders, from a finding of the Lancaster county district court adjudging them guilty to certain contempt of an order of injunction issued by it with respect to certain rates attacked there by members.

William Widener led the attack in district court on a system of rates adopted by a special meeting of the executive castle in 1919. He asserted that the new table was unnecessarily high, oppressive, arbitrary, inequitable and unjust and discriminated against the older members in favor of the younger.

The district court enjoined the rates because delegates had not been specially elected to hold the special session. It said the terms of the delegates elected in 1917 had ended when the castle meeting for that year was finished, and they were powerless to legislate in the special session. While the case was pending in supreme court the executive castle again met, this time with a new-elected set of delegates and adopted the identical table of rates that the special session had approved. At the same time they presented optional rates.

When the original injunction case was finally settled Judge Clements issued an injunction against the officers of the order from enforcing the rates. The defendants say the order was that they should not try to collect more from the plaintiffs in the action and not against all members of the Highlanders. A month later they were cited for contempt. It was claimed by defendants that they had no connection with or knowledge of the fact that the local representatives of one of the lodges had required the payment of assessments from the complainants that constituted a violation of the court order, and that the excess had been sent back and the matter explained to those who paid. They had not directed the collection of the new rates.

The lower court had fined each $500 and costs, and their attorney insisted to the supreme court that there must have been some overt act on their part that was deliberate and contumacious.

FLORISTS HELD A MEETING

Nebraskans Engaged in Raising Flowers, Plants and Shrubs Present Annual Program.

Nebraska organized florists held their annual meeting at the state agricultural college campus Friday morning. Thru the efforts of the florist organization much improvement to Nebraska parks has resulted. W. A. Harrison of York discussed the state park system and how with the help of the state and its citizens the state parks may be developed as beauty spots and as places of rest and recreation.

Ed Williams of Grand Island read a paper on "Ornamental Plants for Decorating City Homes." C. H. Green jr., of Fremont told how to make an attractive flower bed. "Beatifying Nebraska" was presented by C. W. Andrews of Arlington. "The Selection and Care of Ornamental Shrubs" was discussed by W. H. Dunman of the state agricultural college. The florists adjourned their convention at the noon hour.

KILL TWENTY-TWO IN FLORIDA RACE RIOT

Two White and Twenty Negro Victims of Battle After Attack on Girl.

MANY OTHERS ARE INJURED

Blacks Are Barricaded in a Rosewood House.

ANOTHER CONFLICT EXPECTED

Hundreds of Heavily Armed White Men Pour Into Town to Reinforce Handful Guarding Fort of Colored.

ROSEWOOD, Fla., Jan. 5.—Five persons were known dead and at least seventeen others were believed killed in race rioting which broke out here last night.

Two of the dead were white men who joined a posse at Sumner to punish negroes for attacking a white girl. Many of both races were wounded in the fighting last night and today.

The fighting broke out when negroes, believed shielding one of the fugitive blacks, barricaded themselves in a log cabin and repulsed an attack of the posse. Fighting continued thruout the night and was still in progress this afternoon. A renewed attack with sanguinary results was expected at dark.

Reinforcements from the surrounding country poured into Rosewood thruout the day, preparatory to a mass assault on the blacks' stronghold.

The hut where the negroes are huddled was said to have been riddled with bullets in the fighting. The number of negroes dead could not be definitely estimated because the number in the house when the battle started was not known.

Many others were injured in the outbreak which followed an attack on a young white girl and climaxed in an attempt by posses to forcibly take a negro suspect.

Roads leading to Rosewood were thronged with reinforcements and a sanguinary battle was momentarily expected.

The blockhouse of the blacks will be stormed when the forces have gathered, it was feared. Fears were expressed that the outbreak would spread to surrounding sections of the state.

The blacks refused to give up the suspect, secreted in the negro belt and the posse stormed the hiding place. They were repulsed when the blacks opened fire at close quarters.

Boly Wilkerson, storekeeper, and Harry Andrews, lumber company superintendent, fell dead, and a dozen other besiegers were wounded. The battle lasted more than an hour with both sides entrenched in buildings. Hundreds of shots were exchanged.

Other negroes in the section, terrified, huddled in their huts and prayed until daylight.

The bodies of Andrews and Wilkerson were in the center of the fighting most of the night, but were recovered shortly before dawn.

When the main skirmish died down near midnight, guards were maintained around the barricaded house and sporadic fighting continued until sunrise.

MAY BRING YANKS HOME.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. — The American troops on the Rhine may be withdrawn in the near future, Secretary of War Weeks declared today after the meeting of President Harding and his cabinet, at which the precarious European situation brought about by the collapse of the premiers' conference in Paris was discussed.

Weeks stated that no orders had been sent to General Allen, commander of the American forces, but said that "there is a prospect of ordering the soldiers home in the near future."

CROWN JEWELS IN GRAVE?

Treasury Agents Admit Work on Report Romanoff Gems Are in Cemetery.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Reports that $2,000,000 worth of Russian crown jewels—gems that once graced the Romanoffs at brilliant court functions—lie hidden in a sailor's grave in Brooklyn national cemetery, have been under investigation for several weeks, treasury agents here said today.

The grave [illegible] which the secret [illegible] Hudson [illegible] ad until further investigation [illegible] made, William A. Williams, treasury agent, declared today on basis of a statement he said would be issues by his department in Washington. He asserted that if it is opened the exhumation will be secret.

The Jones grave was closely guarded today. Curious persons were not allowed to approach even within sight of it, under penalty of being shot at by the guards.

Williams admitted that the story being investigated was that a messenger bringing the gems, comprised of diamonds, rubies and emeralds, to the United States to sell them, decided to betray his charge and smuggle them in by placing them in the coffin of Jones, which was being returned home for burial.

Despite the cognizance given the story by federal authorities, several investigators pointed out the similarity of the alleged facts and the incidents in a fiction story recently printed in a magazine and branded it as a clever "press agent" yarn.

Thursday by Captain Anderson, Detective Schneible and Deputy State Sheriff Jones. A five gallon jug of hooch was seized as evidence.

BLAME FIXED FOR MURDER

OPEN HEARING IS HELD AT BASTROP, LA.

Sixty Witnesses to Voluntarily Describe Brutal Slaying of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards.

BASTROP, La., Jan. 5.—Responsibility for terrorism and outlawry which has reigned in Morehouse parish, was to be fixed in open hearing here today.

Sixty witnesses were expected to voluntarily describe the brutal murder of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards, and other attacks of masked men. Sixty others, it was learned, probably will be forced to testify in court in the exposure of hooded mobs.

Long before the court room doors were opened to the public, hundreds from the surrounding country were gathered on the large lawn outside.

Under the windows of the parish courthouse, where the ashes of north Louisiana's bitterest feud and murder mystery are to be sifted, the boys of the village romped and played marbles.

Friends of Daniels and Richards were upstairs in the court room. A deputy sheriff searched them for weapons when they entered.

Presence of four companies of national guardsmen here and at Mer Rouge, was a warning that the state had declared outraged justice to be avenged.

But in the ashes of the feud, that has split the parish, are two embers that still hold a sullen glow. Both were in the court room today.

Relatives of Victims.

One of them is J. L. Daniels, father of one of the victims of masked terrorists. His talk is rambling and he is bent with age. So wrought up with the horror of the fate of his son at the hands of a mob, Daniels could hardly talk to newspapermen.

"Now Watt was a strong man—"

Then he could go no further and walked away. But a moment later he was back.

"Now I haven't had much schooling. I'm a farmer," he said in reply to a question. "Retired now, renting out 1,700 acres. But Watt had schooling. He went to Louisiana state university. Watt was—"

When he came back he had his watch in his hand.

It was only a short time until the courtroom doors would open.

"Will I be at the hearing? I will that! I'm going to see this thru. Why, Watt—"

This time the little old man withdrew from the group for good.

The other member is Mrs. Thomas F. Richards, whose husband was returned to her at Christmas as one of the shattered horrors that a dynamite blast had brought to the surface of Lake La Fourche.

Dry eyed, composed, silent almost to the point of taciturnity, she has waited since Christmas at the home of a friend for the hearing, so that she could testify—and then go away. "No, I'm not going to live here when it's all over," she confided to correspondents. "I'm going to see it thru and then I'm going to Oklahoma where I was raised."

HERE IS A NEW GAS PASSENGER CAR

A short time ago the Burlington placed in service a new gasoline passenger car between Rulo and Atchison, the new car taking the place of a five man train that was rarely loaded to the capacity of one of its cars. The gasoline car makes the regular train schedule and carries the business with a two man crew. Two light grades on the line must be climbed. The new car is said to have shown sufficient power to carry its load over them on time.

POTATO GRADING FAVORED

President Pedrett of the Association of Growers Would Make Law More Strict.

At a conference of the potato improvement association held in connection with meetings of organized agriculture, J. Pedrett of Kimball, who is president of the association, made the following statements:

"One of the most important things at the present time in so far as the potato grower of Nebraska is concerned, is to see to it that the present state potato grading law is maintained in its present form or even made more strict than at the present time. It is the greatest protection that a potato grower has on a declining market. The potato grading law is not responsible for the low price paid for some potatoes but it has made it possible for many potato growers to get more nearly what the potatoes have been worth because the buyer was handling a standard product.

"In some sections of the state, the report has been circulated that $17 is charged for the inspection of cars of potatoes. This statement is misleading. The fee charged by the state department of agriculture as fixed by law is $4 per car. If a grower is growing certified seed potatoes, he is charged additional fees for seed certification work. The certifying of seed potatoes is supervised by the horticulture department of the agricultural college in cooperation with the potato improvement association. The cost of this work is met by fees paid by the growers, who voluntarily get into the seed certification business. The fees paid for seed certification work should not be confused with the car lot inspection fees.

It was quite apparent at the convention of the Nebraska potato improvement association, held at Alliance in December, that the most responsible and progressive growers from various sections are in favor of a strong potato grading law. It also seemed significant that in regions where potatoes of good quality are being grown there is practically no objection to the potato grading work and that most objection comes from those regions in which large proportions of poor quality potatoes have been produced."

The conference had been postponed for one day awaiting the return of the secretary, H. O. Werner, who had been in attendance at the convention of the potato association of America. Mr. Werner reports that great interest is being shown thruout the entire country, in western Nebraska dry land Triumph seed potatoes because of the good performance of these potatoes where they have been tried. It was the general opinion of those at the national convention, that the certification standard should be made more rigid so as to raise the standard of potatoes that are sold as certified seed potatoes.

Both engines were demolished and the track was torn up for Learly 1,000 feet.

CHAPPELL GIVES HIS VIEWS

Intends to Wage War Against Violators of Law—Will Keep Record of First Offenders.

"I am going to enforce the law in the city of Lincoln while I am police judge," declared the new police judge, E. B. Chappell to the court at the close of his first session Friday morning. "It's going to be unhealthy for anyone caught violating the law in the next two years." He paid a tribute to ex-Judge H. J. Whitmore when he said that his predecessor had conducted police court in an able manner for the past six years.

The police judge pointed out that this country has arrived at the place where many people regard it as a joke to be arrested and hailed into police court. Judge Chappell is going to keep a list of first, second and third offenders and says that they will be treated as such.

"Appealing a case will no help matters any," said Chappell, "as the city prosecutor has assured me that every appealed case will be prosecuted to the fullest extent."

"I want to cooperate with the officers in their efforts to clean up the city. Tho I may see some things from a different point of view, I do not wish to reflect upon my predecessor who has conducted his court in a very able manner."

Fire which destroyed the Sydenham military hospital Kingston, Ont., forced the removal in bitter cold weather of 260 soldier patients.

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Borroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Enas S. Costa of Watsonville, Cal., whose family uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

MRS. KNOX ASSERTS MALICE BEHIND CASE

Texas Lumber Queen Held for Murdering Husband Insists She Is Innocent of Crime With Which Enemies Charge Her.

HEMPHILL, Tex., Jan. 5.—Lillian Knox, held in $25,000 bail on charge of murdering her millionaire husband, Hiram Knox, today gave out her version of the case for the first time in an interview.

"Malice and envy are behind this prosecution—I am innocent of this awful crime and I will prove it," the attractive widow charged. "There are just a few persons in this timber country who have tried to break me," she added. "They failed in that—now they have charged me with an awful murder. But I have no fears. I will prove my innocence.

"Why, I could make many times that bond," she said, referring to the $25,000 bond set by W. H. Pratt at the close of the trial yesterday, "but it is unreasonable and I won't do it. It is some of those who I have befriended most who are now in this black conspiracy against me. Isn't it strange how they fawn at your feet and accept all you have to give when the sun is shining, but when dark clouds come over your life ho wmany of these fair weather friends flee and some of them, like wolves, are ready to devour you."

Mrs. Knox spoke of her life in the little town of Hemphill.

"They have spoken of my extravagances," she said. "Yes, I was extravagant, but most of my money was spent trying to do something for the poor people of this country."

She referred to how she had spent thousands of dollars to create a playground for the children of the hill country; how she had brought birds of paradise and built a deer park for the people of the little town.

"Yes, I couldn't be happy without sharing the things I had with those about me," she added. "You know Hiram and I built model homes for all our employees. We gave them better than the necessities of life, something to make life sweet and worth while."

The ordeal thru which Mrs. Knox is passing seems to bear lightly on her.

"Oh, I have no fears, and that is what sustains me now that all these shadows have settled on my life" she added.

VILLA FOUGHT FOR COUNTRY

PERSONAL GAIN NOT THOUGHT IN LAWLESS DAYS.

Made Tool of Dishonest Politicians—Learned to Read and Write After Becoming Revolutionary.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, (By Mail)—Gen. Francisco "Pancho" Villa, former famous Mexican outlaw, is writing the story of his life. His story as told in his own words follows:

"I was born near the place called Rio Grande and baptized at San Juan del Rio, Durango. I was just forty-five year old this last fourth of October. My family was extremely poor. I did not know who my father was and grew up with my mother, my maternal grandfather and my brothers and sisters.

"In order to earn a few pennies my mamma would send me to a neighboring city to sell aguamiel (fresh unfermented sap of the century plant). In that way I got along until I was nine years old. One day I told mamma that I wanted to work at something else. I remember she gave me a hug and kissed me and said 'my poor little boy, you're ashamed of being seen selling aguamiel, aren't you'?

"By various bits of work we managed to earn enough money to buy a little firewood. I borrowed a burro and in that way began to work among the mountain villages thereabout. Then I was sixteen I had twenty-five mules of my own that I had bought little by little. I also had tools and equipments and my family's situation at that time had completely changed. From the goat skins on which we used to sleep we had reached the place where we could afford a good house and dress well.

"I carried merchandise all thru Durango, Sonora and Sinaloa and everything would have gone fine, if the mayor of one of the neighboring towns had not abused his authority and tried to abduct one of my sisters. I shot and wounded him and my persecutions then commenced. So I got away from my home and went to work in Parral. There I learned something about house construction and for a while worked as a contractor. Then I ran a meat shop and it turned out so well I was able to open up two or three of my own.

A Cattle Buyer.

"I kept on 'navigating' and before long was taken on by the 'Empacadora' company. As they knew how well acquainted I was with the whole mountain country and with the cattlemen they offered me the job of cattle buyer for the 'Empacadora.'

"I left my own business and set out to cover the entire republic. They gave me 15 pesos a day for wages and fifty centavos a head. In that way I gathered together a capital of $7,000 pesos by my own work alone.

"I left the 'Empacadora' and took up the meat business again on my own account. I employed not alone my own capital but that of several merchants as well, but all of these funds I returned before I joined the revolution with Madero.

"Before the revolution broke out in Puebla I was already with Madero and Abraham Gonzales. I was paying men from my pocket to protect Gonzales, then governor of Chihuahua, because they distrusted him and were likely to try to make away with him.

"From then on I continued my life as a revolutionary. But all the time before you'll notice I never had a bit of schooling. When I was twenty-five years old I realized how absolutely necessary it was to know a little something of figures, to be able to write and such times as I wasn't busy I would make letters in the sand with sticks I found along the way.

"Little by little, and by asking other persons, I soon learned to read by my own efforts. Now I can read perfectly well and write respectably. I am applying myself to study. For all of my intelligence and good memory, I want to see that everyone that has any such ambition may count on the school and teachers here.

Always Opposed Tyranny

"I have opposed every kind of tyranny since [illegible] before the evolution. Afterwards I fought [illegible] years and got [illegible]. Likely my enemies do not realize that I never wanted a thing for myself, but just for my country. I have always desired the well being of my people and if I endured every sort of hardship, as well as the responsibility of commanding 60,000 men, it was because I believed in rendering a service and doing a duty.

"But in spite of all—those politicians—they always garble and distort—they play hob with everything. I know how to organize and I did it with good intentions, but I know now that the politicians that approached me during that time were all crooked. They hoodwinked me for sure then. I wanted that we all should think only of the country. But how few men I found like Maderro or like General Angeles.

"No one carries the memory of General Angeles so engraved in his heart, as I do, because he transformed me from a hard rough uncultured man.

WALES WILL MARRY A SCOTCH PEERESS

Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon Reported to Be Choice of Future King of England for His Consort.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—All the British empire thrilled with the report today that the prince of Wales' engagement to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of a Scotch nobleman, would be announced this spring.

The Daily News, which two days ago stated that the prince would marry an Italian princess, apparently succeeded in evoking not only an official denial but an authoritative report on the real choice for future queen.

Today the News describes the prince's choice as a young Scotch noblewoman, daughter of one of the oldest peers of Scotland, a very close friend of Princess Mary, a popular society girl and one who has been seen constantly with the prince.

The prospective bride is twenty-two, the prince twenty-eight. She is a sportswoman who rides and hunts.

Exremely popular in court society, Lady Elizabeth was one of the bdiresmaids at Princess Mary's wedding. At that time her engagement to the prince was rumored. Later she was reported engaged to the duke of York, the princes' brother.

Reports that the engagement of the prince of Wales to the daughter of the Scotch earl will be announced soon were characterized as "devoid of foundation" at York house, the prince's residence today.

ARCTIC TROUT IN LAKE.

GLACIER PARK, Mont., (By mail)—Indians at Glacier Park caught in Iceberg lake a species of trout identified as the Salvelinum Rossi, which has been known to exist in the Arctic ocean and geologists in this territory are convinced this strange body of water in Glacier National park is connected subterraneously with the icy water of the far north.

CZECH MINISTER IS SHOT BY ASSASSIN

Bank Employe Held for Shooting Finance Director Raschin—Banks Unfriendly to Currency Reforms.

PRAGUE, Jan. 5.—Finance Minister of Czecho-Slovakia Raschin was shot twice by an anarchist while driving to his office this morning.

Mr. Raschin was carried to a nearby hospital, where it was reported his wounds were serious.

He said his motive was political hatred.

Bankers of Czecho-Slovakia have been aroused to bitter opposition by Raschin's currency reforms.

BANDIT TOO ROUGH WITH HIM

So Kansas City Pie Wagon Driver Apologizes to Police for Hitting Gangsters.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 5.—"Some of these bandits go too far and you just have to hit them," Clyde Zieg, pie wagon driver, meekly apologized to police.

Zieg struck a pair of bandits for the second time because they were "discourteous" when they held him up, he explained.

"I told them I had $20 and held up my hands for them to take it. Instead of being satisfied one bandit slashed my face with a knife and the other one kicked me.

"I couldn't stand that, so I hit back and they ran without taking the money."

Zieg said he was held up a month ago.

"I told them to take my money, but they got rough that time, too, so I just had to kick them off my wagon and drive away," he said.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

BRYANS HAVE ONE BIG DAY

GOVERNOR SHARES HONORS WITH HIS BROTHER.

Barrows Tells Lawmakers It Should Be Easy to Put Over a Double Set of Recommendations.

Thursday was a big day for the Bryans. Gov. C. W. Bryan shared the honors with his brother, W. J. Bryan. The ex-governor, now Citizen Samuel R. McKelvie, was not overlooked in the generous spread of applause, but on the whole, it was a big democratic festival with members of that political faith celebrating return to more or less prominence and power after four years of hunger. The house chamber was packed for the inaugural ceremonies. Unable to gain entrance, the overflow applicants swarmed about in the halls. The gallery was filled to capacity. The space back of the railing much used by lobbyists was packed and people were seated on window sills, telephone booths, rails, tables and even upon the floor.

The addresses of the outgoing governor and of the incoming governor were opposites. So much so, in fact, that a number of people were reminded of a joint debate between two orators on contrary sides of some great issue. Legislators were likened to judge and jury. Lieutenant Governor Barrows who presided over the joint session, tossed in a bit of satire when he said:

"It should be an easy matter for this legislature to carry out all of the recommendations of both governors."

Just before adjournment of the inaugural session, some one shouted from the rear of the hall the name of Bryan. It spread like a prairie fire over the packed hall and in a few moments it became an insistent shout. Governor Bryan remained in his seat on the platform. W. J. Bryan also remained seated for some moments. When it became apparent that it was he and not the governor who must speak or else permit the shouting to continue, the former Nebraskan, now a citizen of Florida, took the floor. He spoke a few words of praise and mentioned only his brother.

"I appreciate this compliment," he said. "You have expressed confidence in one member of the family. I think he deserves it and am satisfied that he will have given expression, as far as possible, to the sentiment of the people."

There was a slight interruption when a man toward the rear of the hall shouted "amen."

"I know him," continued Mr. Bryan in reference to his brother. "I know him probably better than any man. I believe that his conception of his official duty is much the same as that of Lincoln and that every minute of every day he will realize that he is the hired servant of the people of this state."

W. J. Bryan and party entered the hall at 1:45 p. m. and the commoner was accorded a big ovation. They were given seats reserved for them directly in front of the speaker's desk. At the conclusion of the session, W. J. Bryan and Governor C. W. Bryan with backs against the desk, faced the crowd which surged orward. The handshaking was exhaustive. Jerry Howard, sometimes mentioned in connection with the department of labor, stood between them. He introduced Governor Bryan to W. J. Bryan.

"Governor Bryan, I want you to meet W. J. Bryan of Florida," he said.

The retiring governor, before giving an account of his stewardship and making recommendations to the legislature, said that he was conscious of a great obligation for the opportunity which had been his, to serve four years as governor of his native state. When he told the code story as illustrated by charts, Governor Bryan glanced hastily at the charts then glanced away again. The incoming executive smiled when his predecessor said to the legislators:

"If these charts will be of any service, you are welcome to them."

Governor McKelvie was interrupted several times by applause, particularly when he emphasized the point that increased expenditures due to new and special activities would have been encountered, code or no code and when he said that for the first time in history, there are no deficiencies under expending agencies.

There was some handclapping when Governor Bryan demanded repeal of the code. There was more, however, when he spoke in opposition to a sales tax of any sort, particularly a tax on gasoline and when he proposed to abolish county highway commissioners and vest their powers in some one member of each county commission without additional pay.

What Governor McKelvie favored, Governor Bryan did not favor. So pronounced were these opposites that some one expressed the suspicion that each governor must have taken a peep at the manuscript of the other.

FORMER JOURNAL MAN DIES

Fred DeWitt, Pioneer Pressman, Passes Away at Chicago.

The announcement of the sudden death of Fred DeWitt at Chicago Wednesday, forty years an employe of the State Journal company, caused genuine sorrow among old associates and friends. Mr. DeWitt at the time of his departure for Chicago about five years ago to make his home, was foreman of the commercial press room of the Journal. He entered the service of the company in 1877, when it was still housed in the old building at Ninth and O streets. Lou Hellweg foreman of the bindery, said that Mr. DeWitt was working for the Journal before he joined its forces.

Will H. Love, an old friend, said that Fred DeWitt was one of the most genial of men and was always ready to help friends that were in need of financial assistance. "Doc" Cronley, foreman of the electrotype foundry, recalled that besides being faithful, skillful and loyal service when with the Journal, Mr DeWitt was the first man to put his hand in his pocket and give money in cases of financial distress.

When a message reached the Love home Thursday from Mrs DeWitt telling of the death of her husband it proved a distinct shock. A few days previously Mrs Will Love had received a letter from Mrs DeWitt stating that Mr. DeWitt was in his usual good health.

He had relatives in Chicago, but in his immediate family leaves no one but his widow. He owned considerable property and while a resident of Lincoln built several fine homes. He was about sixty-five years old.

PRESIDENT OF THE TAXPAYERS' LEAGUE

WILLIAM I. FARLEY.

AURORA, Neb., Jan. 4.—William I. Farley, president of the Nebraska state taxpayers' league, recenty organized in Hastings, which now has affiliated with it, organizations in about twenty counties, is a banker and real estate man of long business experience in Aurora. He is president of the First National bank of Aurora, the First National bank at Marquette, and the First State banks at Hordville, Murphy, Thedford and Whitman. Mr. Farley was one of the first residents of Aurora and besides his banking interests is the owner of a large amount of farm land in this county.

He was a prominent member of the legislature of 1907 and was closely allied with the many reforms passed that term. In politics he has always been a republican and has represented the party in some of the national conventions.

Mr. Farley believes that the organization of the taxpayers in a determined effort to get at the cause of high taxes and to cure it by the reduction of expenses is the only way to secure any relief. He plans to spend a part of the winter in Lincoln in order that he may keep in close touch with the taxpayers' league organization and with the legislature.

NEW GOVERNOR ON DUTY

CHARLES W. BRYAN TAKES OVER EXECUTIVE OFFICE.

Accompanied by His Secretary and Brother, W. J. Bryan, He Enters Upon His Duties.

Samuel R. McKelvie stepped down and out of the governor's office shortly before 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon and Charles W. Bryan took his place. Changes were made in several other state offices but in spite of all this transformation of state affairs from one set of men to another work on the new capitol proceeded as if nothing had happened and men and women everywhere went about their business, few if any stopping to look at their tax receipts.

Governor Charles W. Bryan went to the executive office immediately after the inaugural ceremonies. He was accompanied by his secretary J. H. Broady. Many new faces, some of an expectant cast, surrounded the door of the governor's office. J. H. Presson, venerable clerk of many successive governors was on duty when the new governor arrived. Mr. Presson had been reappointed for another two years. He had on his desk a new notarial commission ready for the new executive's signature. Mr. Bryan was too busy accepting congratulations from friends to take time to sign the commission so that document was laid aside for the present. Some more important document will receive the new governor's first official attention.

W. J. Bryan Present.

W. J. Bryan, brother of the new governor, had preceded the gubernatorial party to the executive office. He stood in the governor's private office engaged in coversation with Congressman Edgar Howard.

Governor Bryan has been suffering from a tooth gone wrong and at one time it was doubtful if he would be able to deliver his inaugural message. He went thru that ordeal with much grace under the circumstances, but his troubles were not at any end. He must prepare for the inaugural reception at the governor's mansion which was to open within three hours. While at the executive office he was still troubled with pain and thru his secretary was arranging to visit a dentist.

State Treasurer Charles D. Robinson of Red Cloud went to the treasurer's office at the close of the inaugural ceremonies and took charge of affairs turned over to him by the outgoing treasurer, Dan B. Cropsey. The checking of more than $11,000,000 in bonds owned by the state and more than $3,000,000 of cash, bank deposits and state warrants carried as cash cannot be completed until Friday. Treasurer Robinson has given a bond for $1,000,000 as required by law, approved by the outgoing governor. He is in charge of the treasury but could receipt for nothing more than cash in the office because the checking of securities was not completed.

Attorney General O. S. Spillman of Pierce succeeded Clarence A. Davis. The new official has appointed George W. Ayres of Lincoln as one of his assistants and has reappointed C. L. Dort as assistant. He has chosen T. J. McGuire of Omaha to have charge of the attorney general's work in that city, but has gone no farther in an nouncing appointments.

Charles W. Pool of Lincoln, elected secretary of state as a democrat, took possession of his office late in the day. He has appointed Hugh Cooper of Tecumseh as deputy and has chosen a few of his assistants.

HOME ECONOMICS ASSOCIATION ELECTS

MRS. RAY KALLENBARGER IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT.

Nebraska Home Economic Association Closes Successful Session With Election Following Several Addresses.

Mrs. Ray Kallenbarger of Dunning Neb., was elected president of the Nebraska home economics association, at the closing meeting Thursday afternoon, to succeed Mrs. Lulu Kortz Hudson of Simeon, who was ineligible for an additional term. Mrs. C. B. Noyce of Waterloo, Neb., was elected vice president and Miss Stella Mather, home demonstration agent, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Kallenbarger was before her marriage Miss Esther Warner of Lincoln. She is the daughter of Mrs. Cora F. Warner. She was the first county agent in the state, having served with success in Seward county. Later she was in charge of the home management courses and practice cottage of the department of home economics at the agricultural college. Her husband is engaged in farming and her home is now on a farm near Dunning.

The closing program opened with the following group of songs, sung by Miss Vera Augusta Upton, accompanied by Miss Mabel Klauss: "I Think" by d'Hardelot, "Smilin' Thru," Cadman's "The Heart of Her," "An Old-Fashioned Town" by Squires, and "The Carnival" by Molloy.

Announcement was made that the total enrollment had reached 300. Three speakers appeared: Miss Anna Kramph of the First National bank of North Platte, Miss Florence Hall of the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture, and Miss Mary E. Sweeny, executive secretary of the American home economics association, Baltimore, who spoke also Thursday morning.

Had a Wide Subject.

Miss Kramph declared that her subject, "The Home Maker's Duty as a Citizen," covered any subject that she might mention. She lashed the type of citizens who rave and howl on patriotism on the Fourth of July and then go around the corner and won't pay their taxes. She said one of woman's duties was to analyze what taxes mean and then teach the legislators that children should have the best coming to them the same as the best is provided for the hogs of the state. She attributed much of the false economy and mistakes of legislators to ignorance. Men and women should be elected to the legislature, she said, who are able to go to the source of information and then bring up only bills that amount to something. Miss Kramph expressed the desire to see county libraries established so that no home in the most remote district of the state need be without books. She made a special plea for interest in endorsement of the Shepherd-Towner bill.

Miss Florence Hall of the dairy division told of surveys being carried on in various parts of the country, which prove that children do not have enough milk in their diet. She said that country children drink less milk than city children. She gave one pint per day as the minimum for each individual, old and young. She said she was not advocating a milk diet, but that milk should be included each day. The United States has one dairy cow to practically four people. When the consumption of milk decreases, statistics show that mal-nutrition increases.

Home Maker and Business.

"The relation of the Home Maker to the Business World" was outlined by Miss Sweeny. She said women could control the kind of merchandise offered if they only realized their power. American women buy 87 per cent of all food on the American market, 48 per cent of the hardware used in houses, and 15 per cent of the clothing for men and boys. She said women had been accused of getting only 15 per cent of efficiency in the money spent. The job of the buyer has been tamepered with by the chemsi in mercerized cotton masquerading as linen and in wool substitutes not readily detected. She said women should realize that it is the duty of citizens not to be cheated. They should learn to respect quality rather than style, which would be of advantage to the manufacturer as well as to themselves in reduction of cost. Buying has become so complicated that expert knowledge is required. A home economics experiment station, where such information would be available, was said to be needed for the benefit of the homes.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Bill Bailey and Lynn Cowan, former Iowa boys new in vaudeville, were guests of Prof. M. I. Evinger at the Lions luncheon Thursday and were persuaded to do a few stunts with the piano and banjo. Mr. Cowan, pianist and singer, was for three years a roommate of Professor Evinger at Iowa state college and the University of Wisconsin, and Mr. Bailey he knew in Ames, Ia. The two are planning on a world tour next year, when they will play and sing for theater goers in Europe, Africa, China and Japan.

W. J. Bryan made good on his promise to come back to the old home town and see his brother, Charles W. Bryan, inaugurated as governor. Mr. Bryan is in his usual good health, and was bubbling over with good humor over the event that he journeyed far to witness. He is still busy on the lecture platform. He came in Thursday from Kansas City, where he had spoken the night before, and will remain until Saturday. He speaks in Omaha Saturday night and then leaves to fill eastern engagements. He is the guest of his sister, Mrs. T. S. Allen.

MANY AT RECEPTION FOR NEW GOVERNOR

Some Present Declared It Largest Crowd That Had Ever Attended Such an Event at the Mansion.

What was declared by some to be the largest crowd that ever attended an inaugural reception at the mansion, greeted Governor Charles W. Bryan and the other state officers Thursday evening. For three hours a steady stream of people flowed past the receiving line and shook hands with and congratulated the successful candidates. The receiving line was composed of the following: Governor and Mrs. C. W. Bryan, Lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Fred G Johnson, Secretary of State Charles Pool, State Auditor George W. Marsh, State Treasurer and Mrs. Charles D. Robinson, Commissioner Dan Swanson, State Superintendent John Matzen, Attorney General O. S. Spillman, Chief Justice A. M. Morrissey and his niece, Miss Morrissey; Judge and Mrs. C. B. Letton, Judge and Mrs. W. B. Rose, Judge and Mrs. James R. Dean, Judge and Mrs. Chester H. Aldrich, Judge and Mrs. George A. Day, Judge and Mrs. E. G. Good, Railway Commissioner and Mrs. H. G. Taylor, Commissioner and Mrs. T. A. Browne, and Commissioner and Mrs. C. A. Randall. W. J. Bryan was present but took no active part. State Adjutant General H. J. Paul, assisted by Major H. C. Stiem and the state staff, was in charge.

The crowd at times overflowed onto the lawn while waiting for a chance at the front door. Once inside it pushed and jammed its way down again. Despite the valiant efforts of the military staff, there was no time when anyone in the front hall or on the stairway could not lift their feet from the floor in perfect confidence that they were in no danger of falling.

The receiving line occupied the blue room downstairs and terminated near the refreshment table. Punch and wafers were served. The decorations were in red, white and blue, and featured many flags.

Dancing was in progress in the ball room on the third floor. The crowd here was not quite so dense as on the lower floors. Punch was served to the dancers thruout the evening. The reception was informal, only an occasional tuxedo or evening gown being seen.

Telltale Symptoms of Woman's Ills

Every woman who suffers from backache, headaches, dragging-down pains, nervousness, irregularities, displacements, irritability, or despondency should recognize in such symptoms some derangement of her system which should have attention before some more serious ailment develops. These conditions are often evidenced by a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude and sleeplessness. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been pre-eminently successful in overcoming such conditions, and it is now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills.—Advertisement.

TURNS DOWN APPLICATION

BLUE VALLEY OIL AND GAS COMPANY TO APPEAL.

Blue Sky Board Will Not Permit Corporation to Sell Stock on Fifty Thousand Acre Block.

BEATRICE, Neb., Jan. 5.—The Blue Sky board at Lincoln has turned down the application of the Blue Valley Oil and Gas company for permission to sell stock. The company, recently organized, to take over the fifty thousand acre block of the old Hastings-Holdrege interests, was to have been capitalized at $125,000 at $1 a share. Provision was made to acquire the rig and tools near Blue Springs. The company will, it is stated here, appeal from the decision of the Blue Sky board, to the Lancaster county district court. The state bureau recently demanded that the company present a petition bearing five hundred signatures and pledges for financial and moral support for the project before a permit be issued. The promoters of the oil company assert that this is an impossibility.

ENGINE PASSES OVER BODY OF SWITCHMAN

G. H. Haas of Lincoln Has Narrow Escape From Death Under Wheels in Aurora Yards.

AURORA, Neb., Jan. 5.—What was certainly a "hair's breadth escape" was that of G. H. Haas, of Lincoln, a switchman employed here in the Aurora yards for several weeks, when the switch engine passed for its full length over him without doing more than bruising and scorching him. If his head had been half an inch wider his skull would have been crushed. Haas was riding on the rear foot board of the switch engine which was backing down the yards. He had on a new pair of shoes and suddenly he slipped and fell beneath between the rails and the engine passed over him. In explaining it, Haas says that he fell "catawompus" between the rails so that either feet, head or hands fell across either rail. Engineer G. H. Johnson either heard or saw what had happened and immediately stopped the engine and assisted in taking Haas out of the cow catcher. He was badly dazed, rumpled, bruised and scorched slightly but no bones were broken. The skin was shaved from one part of his skull indicating the nearness he came to a crushed skull. Holes were burned in his clothing.

POLICE SAY COOK IS A CAKE-EATER

Alleged Robber Fifty Years Old Accused of Wearing Fine Clothes and Courting Attention of Flappers.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 5.—George Cook, 4713 South Twentieth street, is a fifty-year-old "cake-eater," police charged, after taking a confession from him that he connived with three others to holdup the El Beudor apartments where he was employed as night elevator operator.

Detectives said he wore silk underwear and other soft finery and courted the attentions of young "flappers."

"I knew he had an affinity and went to dances, but what could I do?" said his wife, who, with her four children, ages nine to two, visited him at the city jail yesterday. Station officers, touched by her plight, contributed $8 to her relief.

Mrs. Cook also went to the welfare board asking for help and aid in forcing the "other woman' she blamed for her husband's downfall, to contribute to support of her family.

"George was a fine husband until he met this other woman," she said. "She lives in a downtown hotel and George told me she was worth $90,000." Then she hesitated. "Maybe it was $9,000," she faltered.

Mrs. Cook said her family had had very little to eat since her husband's imprisonment. "When I visited him in jail he asked me to forgive, but I can't. He made $15 a week and gave me every cent of it, but I suppose his rich friend took care of him.

The mother, who is forty-four, said she would find the "other woman" and demand her aid in caring for her family because "she broke up my home."

But Cook told another staory. "I had to have coal to keep my wife and little children warm," he said in explanation.

"Red" Walters Identified.

OMAHA, Jan. 5.—"Red" Walters, arrested in Ashland recently, held hero by federal authorities, released under $10,000 bond and rearrested because of alleged defects in the bond, was taken to Lincoln yesterday afternoon to be confined in the Lancaster county jail pending a hearing today or tomorrow before Federal Judge Munger. He is resisting efforts of the government to take him back to Kansas City, Kas., to answer indictments charging him with interstate transportation of stolen automobiles. He denies that he is Walters but government agents say his fingerprints prove him to be the man.

How You May Easily Achieve More Beautiful Legs and Ankles

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

PERHAPS in the days when skirts were not so frank, women didn't worry about their legs and ankles as much as they do today. When we look at the portraits of ladies in the picturesque costumes of other days, we realize that they must have spent more of their time just sitting still and looking pretty than in any other way.

How do we know this?

In the first place, they were often too tightly laced to do anything very active. Those wasp-waists would naturally have developed had they done the vigorous, active things that women do today. And, indeed, such activity would have been well-nigh impossible in the tight-laced corsets which they considered the smart things to wear.

Then, there were the skirts. They were not only long and full, but they more than swept the ground on all sides. How could women have done more than the absolutely necessary moving about in such hampering garments?

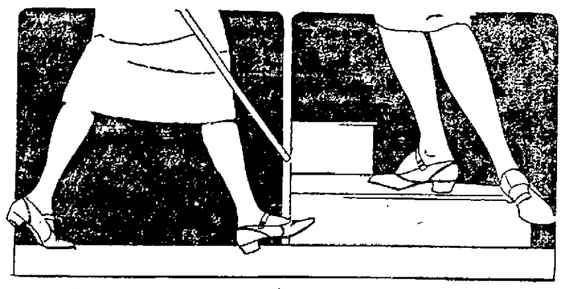

This was impressed upon me not long ago when I happened to be in the shop of a modiste. Her manikins were showing costumes both long and clinging, for evening, and short and sensible for daytime. They were all attractive and well-planned. Then in the salon there were seated two manikins in voluminous gowns of the most beautiful, shimmering silk. Their frocks were designed merely to show off the silk, for the long, billowy width of their skirts lay on the floor at least two inches deep all about them.

It occurred to me then how very inactive the lovely women of olden times were forced to be by the fashions they wore, and I wondered whether their legs and ankles were as shapely and well-turned as we are led to believe!

For exercise is the great beautifier. It may seem queer, but exercise is the one remedy for either of two prevailing and entirely opposite faults.

If your legs are too big the right kind of exercise will help reduce them. If your legs are too straight and shapeless and undeveloped, exercise is what you need to give them the lines that you covet.

Now, for both of these facts which I have just enumerated I'm going to suggest walking. But it's to be walking with variations. To reduce, walk at a moderate gait long enough to cover three or four miles. To develop your legs make your walk shorter—say, a mile or so—and make it very brisk and "snappy." This means shorter steps, taking care to lift your heel high.

Make Your Walk "Snappy."

Try This Stair Exercise.

Now for variation here's an exercise to add in the good work of reducing:

Stand on an ordinary kitchen chair. I say "kitchen chair," because I mean the strong, wooden kind that has no cane seat to be injured, or practice the same exercise on the stairs.

Now, jump down to the floor, landing lightly on the balls of your feet.

Step back up on the chair or stair and repeat. Do this until you grow tired. It's a pleasant variation from walking, and it's very helpful in reducing.

Make occasions to walk up steps if you have to call on your neighbor to do it. Raise your heels high at each step. This helps, too, to develop the coveted shapely ankle.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Why Madge Felt a "Comfortable Little Feeling of Safety."

I FOUND Claire Foster, dressed for traveling, even to her hat, rushing frantically through her packing.

"I'm going to make it!" she said breathlessly. "I can't get everything in, but I can get some stout paper and cord from Mrs. Barker and make a bundle of what is left."

"I'll help you," I promised, to reassure her. "But come to breakfast now."

She looked at me with suddenly-widened eyes in which there was the haunting fear I had seen when she had mentioned Herbert Pettit's name.

"I—I couldn't eat any breakfast," she faltered.

I took her by the shoulders and swung her around facing me.

"Look here," I said crispily. "There's nothing more unpleasant going to happen to you, I guarantee it. The taxi is already waiting for us, and we only have to eat our breakfasts and start. I have telephoned Dicky to meet us at Timkinsville, and we will motor from there to Nantucket, and go from there to New York on the A. V. & W. In less than twenty minutes we shall be away from even the road leading to Caldwin."

"You mean—" she began breathlessly.

"I mean that you mustn't delay the game by not eating," I interrupted. "I will not stir a step unless you eat a decent breakfast. I won't insist upon it's being a hearty one. And there is not the slightest reason for your being nervous. I'll tell you all about it when we get into the taxi."

She drew a deep breath, as might a child who has been assured of safety from some pursuing danger, and faced me with steady eyes.

"I won't hinder you any longer," she said simply.

"That's right," I said briskly. "Come along to the dining-room now."

She followed me docilely down the hall, and into the dining-room, where we found our places set, and as we sat down Mrs. Barker and the sulky maid came through the kitchen door, each with a covered tray.

Mrs. Barker Explains.

"It will save time to have these things ready by your plate," Mrs. Barker said practically. "Just keep them covered until you've finished your fruit."

She brushed an imaginary crumb from the tablecloth, came around to my side of the table, and said in a low voice intended for my ear alone:

"I didn't intend that anyone should eat in here this morning while you were here, but an old man came in last night after you did, who had made a mistake and left the train at the wrong station—he's some kind of high-class foreigner by the looks and accent of him—and he came just now and asked for an early breakfast, so I couldn't help giving it to him. But he doesn't know anything about this mix-up as the people in the house do, so I don't think you need to mind."

"No, I don't mind," I returned quietly, although my pulses had quickened with excitement.

For I knew, of course, who was the elderly foreigner whom she meant—knew as well as I did a minute later, when Harry Underwood, in his clever but fantastic disguise of Don Ramon Almirez, walked in and took a seat at the other end of the room.

Claire Foster opened her eyes wide at the sight of him, and with a flash of her old vivacity touched my foot beneath the table.

"Where did he get it?" she murmured, bending over her cereal.

"Hush," I countered, warily watching Mr. Underwood out of the corner of my eye.

An Unknown Quantity.

I had no idea whether or not he meant to speak to me. Harry Underwood is always distinctly the unknown quantity of any equation which contains him. His appearance at the Barker house, protected from conjecture as it was by his ingenious story, proved that he was carrying out his voiced intention of watching out for me.

I did not take much stock in his rather melodramatic hints of hidden dangers lurking in my path, but the knowledge of his proximity and care of me gave me a queerly-comfortable little feeling of safety.

YOUR HEALTH

Do You Heed the Warning When Danger First Appears?

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City
U. S. Senator-Elect from New York State

DR. COPELAND

MY FRIEND, Edwin Markham, has charmed me many times by reciting certain of his quatrains. He knows I have appreciated, more than all the rest perhaps the one he has called "Duty."

To my great joy my good friend has just sent me a copy of "Duty." He will forgive me if I quote it to you:

When Duty comes a-knocking at your gate,
Welcome him in; for if you bid him wait,
He will depart, only to come once more
And bring seven other duties to your door.

Just ponder these words a little while! If you are old, you know full well that it is better to do the thing when it first presents itself than to wait.

If you are young, you have yet to learn that time and tide wait for no man. Unless you do your duty when it knocks, you will be overwhelmed by the flood.

A rip in the carpet, in your stocking, in the tablecloth—unless it is repaired at once the hole is perhaps seven times as big tomorrow.

Let me apply this to health:

When there comes a little defect in the body—an aching tooth, frequent pain in the stomach, failure of kidney elimination or a sore joint—then it is that danger is a-knocking at your gate.

Are you wise enough to give heed to this warning? If so, you are doing your duty to your body. If you do not heed, your trouble will multiply. Pretty soon it will be twice as bad, and, before long, it will be seven times as great.

Consider the ailments of the human frame. For instance, let us speak about cancer.

In the beginning cancer is curable. It is neglect and the extension of the trouble due to neglect which leads to disaster. Every persistent swelling, every lump which refuses to go away, every sore which fails to heal, every unexplainable symptom of this sort—don't neglect this knocking at your gate! Answer the summons at once and spare yourself the deadly effects of delay.

Does one eye pain and get red? Do you notice a rainbow-like hole about a light as you gaze upon it out of the darkness? Is the pupil of that eye larger than its fellow? Do you need to change your glasses frequently because of your rapidly-falling vision?

Don't wait. There is a knocking at your gate. There may be glaucoma, a serious disease, in this eye. Have the oculist examine it and advise you. It may not be a thing to worry over, but you will be disturbed by your symptoms unless some painstaking scientist can reassure you.

Systematic physical examinations to make sure the kidneys are functioning as they should are most desirable in middle-life and after. If you discover early that something is wrong, the proper diet and a little care will overcome your trouble. But if you delay, there will come "seven other duties to your door." At least, it will be seven or seventy times as hard to heal you.

Mr. Markham has told us in a new and fresh way that "a stitch in time saves nine." Let us follow his wise advice, and when Duty comes a-knocking at the gate welcome him in.

Nature is kind. She never lets us go up to the brink of the precipice without warning, and early warning. If we will but listen we will hear Nature's knock.

We need discipline in health matters as in ethical conduct. Unless we learn to heed our superiors there is sure to be an accounting some day. Unless we answer the call of duty, the warning of Nature, there will come to our door an overwhelming horde of hungry wolves with outraged Nature's demand for blood.

When Duty comes a-knocking at your gate heed the summons!

Answers to Health Questions

MISS M. S. Q—About eight or nine years ago, while walking on the street, I became dizzy and frightened, and since then I have been afraid to go on the street alone or to go any distance from my home. I have been treated at an institution for this, but my condition is no better. What would you advise me to do?

A—Your condition is nervous in origin. Perhaps you did not continue the treatment long enough at the institution you mention. Treatment will help your condition, so persist in it.

A SUBSCRIBER. Q—Is it injurious to punish a child by slapping or thumping it on the head?

A—Never strike a child on the head. Try persuasion or depriving the child of something it desires.

M. H. B. Q—Please tell me what causes granulated eyelids.

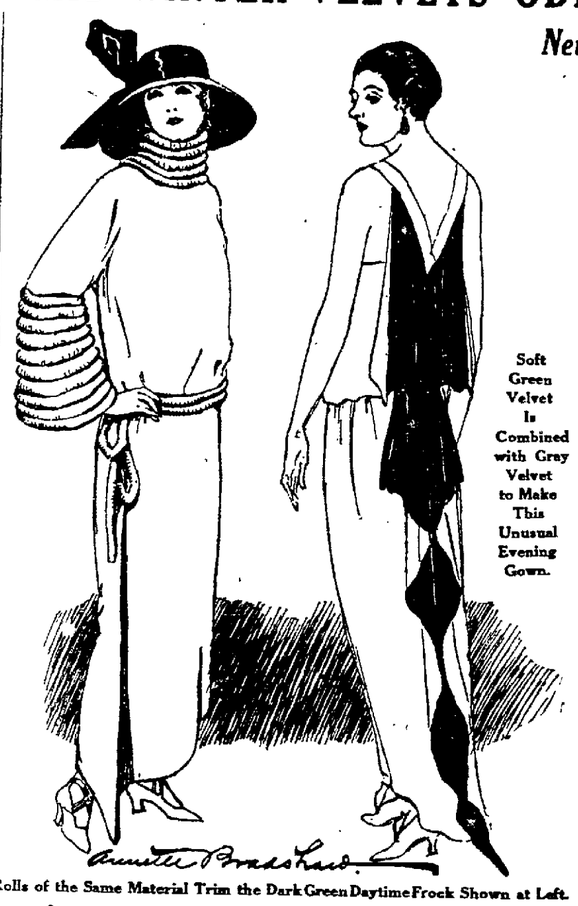

A—Unhygienic surroundings, poor nourishment, infection and eyestrain are among the causes of granulated eyelids.

MID-WINTER VELVETS ODDLY TREATED

Never Have There Been So Many Fine Frocks of Lovely Velvet

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

Soft Green Velvet Is Combined with Gray Velvet to Make This Unusual Evening Gown.

VELVET is ultra-smart this season, and each frock is so lovely that you can't possibly grow tired of the material. Then, too, such distinctive treatments are introduced that one wonders where the designers find their inspiration.

The two models above show the original treatments that are available in velvet gowns both for daytime and evening.

The evening frock is of the softest smoke-gray velvet with a novel V-necked bodice. The jaunty cape at the back and the ripples of the skirt are lined in velvet of a harmonizing green shade.

The other frock is of a smart bottle-green and uses thick rolls of the material by way of trimming. These are simply stuffed tubes of the velvet. This mode of self-trimming would be very effective on any frock.

For evening, several thick rolls of silver tissue about the waist of a chiffon or sheer crepe dance frock give a striking finish.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT A Daughter's Problem

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

DEAR me, I wonder if they realize how we do worry about them, these daughters of ours.

Here is a mother beating her breast and singing aloud the ancient song, sung by every anxious mother since time began.

"She's foolish, she's vain, she flaunts, she's no common sense, she's selfish, she's empty-headed, and oh, she doesn't love me, and she's tired of her home, and whatever shall I do with her?"

Read the letter and see for yourself.

"My daughter seems to be bent on attracting attention at any price, and the price is much beyond my means. In her dress, in her tastes and diversions, she shows a craving for all that is sensational. She is a willing imitator of every fad, and when I scold her for her extreme tastes, she claims that it is all necessary to make an impression.

"I would not mind her extravagant tastes if they were only limited to dress and diversion. I am afraid her craze to shine has gone to her head. She swallows all the sensations and scandals of magazines and newspapers. Notoriety is her food. She already has dreams of attaining notoriety through some sensational performance in later life, similar to that of divorcees in the daily papers. She is secretly priming herself for a stage career, and if that should fail, which I am certain of, as the girl has no talent in that line, she has musical ambitions in reserve. She carries her poses home with her. The girl seems to be dying to be talked about, and all at the sacrifice of her natural personality.

A Remedy Wanted

"I am at a loss as to a remedy, and would, therefore, appreciate any suggestions you can offer through your columns, for my own benefit and for many other mothers who face the problem of a cure for the notoriety fever of the modern girl. Sincerely, E. M. B."

A remedy—so that is what you want, dear mother?

There is just one remedy for you and what is troubling you, and that is locked up in old Doctor Time's medicine chest.

Your daughter is just going through the mental measles, that's all.

They all have them, these girls of ours—the measles and the mumps and the whooping cough, and the best we can do is to keep them out of draughts and feed them light and nourishing food and see that nothing "strikes in."

Think back—don't you remember what a kind of tolerant patience you had for your mother and her old-fashioned ideas when you were the age of this daughter of yours? She meant well, of course, and you couldn't help loving her in a foolish, old-fashioned sort of way, but she didn't understand—oh, she didn't even try to understand!

And now when you look back, you wonder that she didn't take you by the shoulders and shake you till she shook the nonsense and the conceit and the vanity and the ignorance and the self-importance out of your head.

She had to bear with you, your mother, you can look back and see it now, and she probably thought you were just as impossible as you think your girl is today.

Help Her All You Can

Let her fuss and fume, and preen her feathers, poor little thing. She is just following out a great, natural law.

She will settle down in time, and you and she will have many a laugh together over the things that seem so tragic to you now. Don't you remember when you fell in love with the picture of the man in the magazine and cut it out and wore it next your heart and your mother laughed at you for it, and you felt as if you never wanted to see her again as long as you lived?

And the theatre—honestly now, didn't you want to go on the stage, yourself? Don't you remember the time you were in the tableau—"Simply to Thy Cross I Cling"? And how dull and commonplace life seemed when you had to take off your white robe and go home and wipe the dishes?

Don't be so hard on Little Daughter—don't think so much about her—she is something besides your daughter—she is a human being, with her own heart and her own mind and her own soul. Help her all you can, but don't criticize her so bitterly, even in your own heart.

Daughters are mind-readers sometimes, and they resent what you think almost as much as what you say.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens, and have been going for about six months with a young man who is a few years my senior. A few months ago he went away for a course. He said he was coming back for me. I love this man dearly, and can't see how I could give him up. But it seems the longer we go together the more I imagine his love for me is failing.

Now, I am not inclined to be interested in other young men. I want you to tell me some way to bring him back as he was. He has a good position.

We were supposed to be married some time this fall if everything went well. Am I jealous or what? He has never been with any other girls that I know of, but has asked one that I know of for a date. What shall I do? KID.

KID: This young man proved his love for you when he asked you to marry him. There is no reason why you should doubt him, and so make both him and yourself unhappy.

If you are sure that your fiance asked another girl for an engagement and it makes you very unhappy, why don't you speak to him very frankly and tell him that it makes you unhappy? I am sure he would not do it again if he knew it threatens the happiness of the girl he loves.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 20 years old. Sometime ago I met a young man a few years my senior. He left for another city soon after I met him, and wrote regularly to me, but he stopped suddenly.

I love this man, and he has said that he loves me. Do you think my letter was misplaced? Shall I write again and ask him why he has stopped writing? PRETTY BABY.

PRETTY BABY: Write once more to the young man, and put your return address on the envelope. If he does not answer it and the letter is not returned to you, then forget about him, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Some time ago a man of my acquaintance seemed to care for me, but we had a quarrel, and since that time he has treated me politely but coolly. He used never to tell me about other girls, but that is his chief topic of conversation now—how sweet some other girl is. I have reasons to believe he once loved me. Does he love me now? S. N. P.

S. N. P.: There is no way of telling whether the man loves you or not, my dear. You cannot be sure any man loves you unless he asks you to marry him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am coming to you for advice, and I know you will tell me what is right.

I have been going with a young man three years my senior. Not long ago we stopped going with each other. I'm going to give a party soon, and I want to know whether it will be wrong for me to invite him.

Is it wrong for a girl to write a young man first if he asked her to write?

If a young man writes in his letters that he does not care for any other girl, and then goes with other girls, and wants to go with me again, would it be wrong if I went with him? SKEETER.

SKEETER: Ask the young man by all means to your party. Don't lose a friend unless you have a very good reason, my dear.

Yes, it is proper to write to the young man.

You cannot expect a man to give up all of his friends unless you are engaged to him, but I would not have much confidence in a young man who tells you an untruth if I were you.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE ALL YOUNG MEN MARRY OLD WOMEN.

UNTIL recently northwestern Australia was not looked upon with interest as a possible land for white men. But with several returning expeditions news has been brought of potentialities which may lure the white man to that uncivilized country.

Here there are many natural resources which will add to the wealth and importance of Australia. To develop this section will not be as difficult as was once thought.

Strange tales of wild men were at first brought back, but to later explorers the natives appeared more friendly. This was due to the tactful way in which they were approached. Especial credit is due to the Stuart-Cochran expedition for the change in the native attitude. Instead of being suspicious and unapproachable, they proved to be helpful and not only willing but eager to meet the white men on an honest footing.

Here, of course, the native life is today just as it has been for centuries. There has been no progress either in developing the country or in social institutions.

Perhaps this will come with the influx of the white men, when they realize the possibilities of northern Australia.

One of the unusual features of life of this part of the world is the strange marriage custom. Here polygamy is practised generally, but in a rather different manner from that of other primitive races.

The explorer is surprised to see the difference in ages of the various husbands and wives. He is astounded to discover that invariably the old men are surrounded by very young wives, and that the young men are all married to old women.

This is because the young men are obliged to choose from the women who are left over after the older men have exercised their privilege of first choice of the marriageable girls.

THE HOME KITCHEN

The Authority on Home Cooking

Five Appetizing Recipes for the Sausage Season.

FROSTY weather is the time to eat sausages, and the various kinds of sausage yield many a toothsome, as well as inexpensive dish. Sausage in meat form is perhaps a trifle less in price than the links, and is handier to season and prepare for so-called "made dishes."

Sausage, if made of all pork, instead of part pork and part beef, always greases its own pan without the addition of other grease, and the pan should always be warmed before putting the links into it. Also, if they are pricked with a coarse needle or fine-tined fork, sausage links will hold their shape without bursting in the cooking.

Sausage meat should be seasoned with the best-liked ingredients, then put into a crock, covered, and placed in a cool, dry place until used, as otherwise in a few hours it may mould.

Sausage Croquettes.

Take a half-pound of fresh sausage meat and add to it a level teaspoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of red pepper, the juice of an onion, a half-teaspoonful of finely-ground sage, three-quarters of a cupful of dry crumbs, a teaspoonful of sugar and a beaten egg. Mix well, then mould into croquettes and lay on a floured plate. When ready to cook, dip in beaten egg, roll in very fine crumbs and fry in hot fat. Serve garnished with slices of fried, tart apples.

Sausage Roll.

Make a good pie crust, not too short, and roll out a little thicker than for a pie. Have ready a half-pound of sausage meat that has been well seasoned with pepper, salt, a small cupful of apple sauce, a half-cupful of seeded raisins, a half-cupful of chopped nuts, a teaspoonful of mixed spices and a saltspoonful of curry powder. Mix these ingredients well and add to them the stiffly-beaten white of one egg. Then spread the mixture on the crust and roll it, fold the ends, brush over with a little butter, and bake. The roll may be served with a rich white sauce or a cheese sauce if liked.

Sausage en Casserole.

Butter a casserole dish well. Take a half-pound of sausage meat and season it with pepper, salt, a half-teaspoonful of sage, the juice of an onion and a dessertspoonful each of chopped onion, apple and celery, and blend in a quarter-cupful of crumbs. Mix and heap this in the centre of the dish, then add a cupful of button onions, a cupful of potato balls, a cupful of drained peas, and a cupful of carefully skimmed stock. Cover these ingredients with a biscuit crust rolled half an inch thick, and cook them in the oven for forty-five minutes. Serve this dish from the casserole and use with it cranberry jelly.

Sausage Tomatoes.

Season a quarter-pound of sausage meat very highly, adding a teaspoonful of minced onion, the same of minced white celery tops, pepper, salt, a saltspoonful of curry powder, a tablespoonful of crumbs, and the beaten white of a small egg. Hollow out the stem end of as many tomatoes as are needed, oil them over, stuff them with the sausage mixture, place them close together on a greased baking-dish, and bake until done, but not soft enough to collapse. Serve the tomatoes on buttered toast rounds, and serve with them a smooth tomato sauce in a hot tureen.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, JAN. 6.

An important business day may not be predicted from this day's planetary rulings, and there may be perplexities in social, domestic, affectional and artistic matters. Under an unfriendly Venus, also, engagements relating to some public amusements may meet with annoyance. It is advisable to take no manner of risk, and those in the employment of others should be careful of their positions. Family affairs should be safeguarded.

Those whose birthday it is may meet with anxieties during the year, especially in family affairs or in the employment of others unless they work wisely and well. They should be careful to run no risk. A child born on this day may be talented in music, art or poetry, but it may be somewhat unsuccessful in business unless given a thorough business education. It will have a pleasant and happy disposition and will be well-liked.

THE FOOLISH LITTLE GREEN FROG AND THE SENSIBLE LITTLE TOAD

WELL! Well! Well!" croaked young Hop-Toad one bright morning when he awakened to find his cousin, Croaker Green Frog, sitting on his doorstep. "Where in the world did you come from?"

"From home, of course, you stupid," cried Croaker Green Frog, "where else would I come from this early in the morning?"

"Well, just the same I'm glad to see you, cousin," chatted young Hop-Toad. "Won't you come in and have a bite of breakfast? I have a lovely breakfast all ready, and I'll gladly share it with you."

"You don't need to bother," snapped Croaker Green Frog, who wasn't in a very happy humor.

"Sorry, cousin," laughed young Hop-Toad, trying to be nice and gracious. "But pray, what is your mission in the meadow? Is my aunt or uncle ill, or has some one devoured Mother's eggs she left in the weeds at the edge of the stream?"

"Stupid!" exclaimed Croaker Green Frog. "What do I know about your mother's eggs? You fellows certainly have it soft, with nothing to do but hop over the meadows all day long, so I decided there's no reason why I can't enjoy the same privileges. I've come to see the meadows. Will you go with me?"

"I would gladly if my work was finished," laughed young Hop-Toad. "You see, Mother left me in charge of Farmer White's garden, and it's almost overrun with bugs that will destroy everything he has if I don't get in and clean them out. But after I get through I'll go. Now, if you're not familiar with the dangers of the meadows, you'd better be careful or you'll surely come to harm."

"Harm! Oh! ho!" laughed Croaker Green Frog. "You have nothing in your meadows to frighten me. Come on and go. Leave your work until you come back. That's the way I did. It's silly to spoil one's fun for the sake of a little work that can wait."

But young Hop-Toad was true to his trust, and would not go, so Croaker Green Frog had to go on alone. He hadn't gone far when he stepped on a soft place in the ground. Out popped a funny little fur head, and Billy Mole, for it was none other than himself, blinked his funny little eyes and nodded.

"Well, good-morning, Mr. Hop-Toad," he cried, cheerily. "And how are you this lovely morning?"

"In the first place, I'm not Hop-Toad, I'm his cousin, Croaker Green Frog," snapped the angry, cross frog, "and, second, it's none of your business."

"Well, Good Morning!"

"No?" drawled Mr. Billy Mole. "Pardon me. I thought you were my friend, young Hop-Toad. I'm not at all fond of toads as a diet, but as for frogs—" and before Croaker Frog had a chance he was grabbed in Billy Mole's claws and yanked down into his dungeon. That would have been the very last of that foolish frog if young Hop-Toad hadn't grown uneasy at his cousin's long stay, and come calling him.

Of course, Billy Mole let him go in exchange for a dead field mouse, which young Hop-Toad had in his pocket.

"Isn't it funny!" drawled Billy Mole. "I wouldn't harm a toad for anything, but I certainly do love frogs. I guess that's because they live in the water and are so moist. But I'll let him go if you say so."

Croaker Green Frog thanked his cousin and went right straight home as fast as he could go. That was the last time Billy Mole ever saw him.

THE UNCONSCIOUS SINNER

By Haze. Deyo Batchelor

(Copyright, 1927, by The Public Ledger Company.)

Cleo Ridgefield is the type of girl who unconsciously tempts men to make love to her. When she refuses Dick Wheeler, he tries to commit suicide and is saved by his guardian, Carey Phelps. Carey, believing Cleo to be nothing but a scheming adventuress, succeeds in meeting her, and to obtain revenge for the fact that she has ruined Dick's life, plans to win her heart and marry her. His idea is to tell her after their marriage, the entire truth.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Cleo's Wedding Day.

Cleo opened her eyes one day a week later, and in an instant she was wide awake.

"This is my wedding day!" The thought flashed into her brain suddenly, and with it there came an electrical thrill that passed in a series of little shocks thru every nerve of her body.

She looked around her room and realized suddenly that this was the last morning she would wake up to the dear familiarity of long-known possessions.

Today she was Cleo Ridgefield, but tomorrow she would be Mrs. Carey Phelps! And after that everything would be strange, there would be a new trail to blaze, the thought gave her a queer little feeling of loneliness.

Last night, and every night since she had promised Carey to run away with him without telling any one their secret, she had found it difficult to sleep. If only she had been able to take someone into her confidence. But, as it was, there would be no one to wish her luck. She thought suddenly of her mother, and a little sob welled up into her throat. But the next moment she had resolutely choked it back, and, with a little spring, was out of bed, and was feeling about with her bare feet for her slippers.

In an instant she had rushed to the window, and again a curious little pang assailed her.

It was raining!

The sky overhead was heavily gray, and the rainfall with that peculiar steadiness indicative of many hours of downpour.

"Happy the bride that the sun shines on!"

Cleo repeated the words mechanically, and a little shiver ran thru her. Was this an omen, this dreary, steady downpour? But the next moment she was facing her cowardice with harsh scorn

As if the weather had anything to do with it!

"Cleo, I'm ashamed of you," she scolded fiercely. "You're a superstitious little idiot!"

And by the time she had had her bath and was ready for breakfast, she had forgotten her fears in the rush of things that had to be done before that night.

Before she was finished with breakfast the telephone rang, and before Mary could answer it Cleo had the receiver off the hook.

Carey's voice sounded somehow very cool and impersonal. Not at all like the voice of an eager lover, and, as if in a dream, Cleo heard herself respond.

Inside she was burning, but outwardly she was calm and composed. She mustn't let Carey suspect how she felt, and after all she was simply torturing herself with absurd imaginings. But, like a child, she wanted to cry out to him to reassure her, to take away this queer feeling of unreality that hung over her, and that she knew his presence could dispel if only it were possible to see him for a moment before tonight. But she did not suggest that he come to her. She was too proud for that, and when she finally hung up the receiver it was to the knowledge that everything he had said to her had to do with the plans he had made, and there had not been one word of tenderness or love.

Suddenly she wanted her mother! She wanted the soothing presence of some one she was sure of; she wanted her mother's arms around her, tight, tight!

She went back to the dining room and found that her coffee was cold.

"Mary, where's mother?" Cleo asked as the maid came into the room in response to her ring.

"Don't you remember, Miss Cleo," the maid returned with the easy friendliness of long service. "Your mother has gone out of town to spend the day with your aunt. Mr. Ridgefield is going to join her tonight. They won't be home for dinner!"

CRIMINAL CASE APPEALS.

The supreme court heard arguments in three criminal appeals Friday. One was where George W. Caldwell had been convicted of an assault upon a tenant, Albert E. Spittler. Another was the appeal of Ernest Melchoir from a conviction on a charge of violation of the liquor law, which involved confiscation of an automobile. The third was where William Whetstone appealed from the dismissal by th edistrict court of Brown county of his appeal from a lower court conviction on a charge of violating the prohibitory law. He says the court was in error in holding that two sureties were necessary on the appeal bond.

U OF N LAWS HEAR BRYAN

IDEALS NEEDED IN THE LEGAL PROFESSION.

Success in Public Speaking Includes Knowledge of Subject, Sincerity and Faith in Wisdom of Doing Right.

William J. Bryan told the University of Nebraska law students Friday morning, in an hour's address, of the ideals and qualifications to bring true success in the legal profession. Mr. Bryan was given rousing cheers of welcome and was listened to with almost breathless attention.

In his introduction Dean W. A. Seavey of the law college said: "I wish to present one of the world figures of all times—Bryan." Vigorous college yells followed in unison.

Mr. Bryan sketched briefly his own early training for the law and gave his reasons for special interest in the profession. "Some people think my only purpose in life has been in running for office," he said. On the contrary he was trying to get out. The story was told of the fat woman who asked help of a fellow passenger on a train in getting out at a station. She was so large that she had been trying to get off backwards and every time the conductor pushed her on again. "I have passed three stations already," she was quoted as sayink. "Like that woman I have passed three stations already," said Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan said his earlier ambition, which antedated that of being president, was to help make good government. Circumstances had diverted him from the law into politics. His ideal of a lawyer was stated as one who becomes an officer of the court and assists in securing justice. He considered it a violation of the oath for a lawyer to try to get something for a client which is undeserved, and destructive to the lawyer himself eventually.

"Faith in the wisdom of doing right," he gave as a sentence to build life upon. "A lawyer's influence with a judge depends upon the confidence o fthe judge in his integrity. In proportion as you destroy the confidence of the judge in yourself, you destroy your power to help four client."

Mr. Bryan gave a number of rules for success in public speaking, since the law is a stepping stone to public life, and lawyers become the spokesmen for the people. "I will define eloquence," he said, "as knowing what you are talking about and possessing a real appreciation of the subject. If you have a subject which you know and are sincere in presenting it, people will listen."

The third requisite for a speaker was given as clearness in statement. Mr. Bryan cited Jefferson and Lincoln as remarkable for clearness. "I regard Abraham Lincoln," he said, "as the greatest lawyer this country has produced because of his clearnes sof statement."

Brevity, simple illustrations, and the use of the question were other phases of successful public speaking mentioned. Mr. Bryan commended the use of proverbs and epigrams. The moulder of public opinion takes what people think and puts it in definite form. Lincoln's use of the question form in dealing with the south and Christ's saying, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" were given as examples in the highest form.

In closing Mr Bryan told the students that great success comes only from dealing with great ideas, and great ideas deal with human progress. "Great power must be built upon faith in a God," said Mr. Bryan, "a belief that God stands back of every righteous call. There never was a great man who did not believe in something greater than himself."

John J. McGraw Prefers College Athlete Because He Corrects His Own Faults.

MANAGER OF GIANTS BEGINS LIFE STORY

Relates What Took Place Just Before Last World's Series and Explains Why Babe Ruth Failed to Come Thru.

By John J. McGraw.

Manager New York Giants. Three Times World's Champions.

In beginning the signed story of the famous John J. McGraw today, The State Journal presents to its readers what it believes is the greatest baseball series ever written. McGraw has no peer in modern baseball. His depth and range of experience are equalled by few. His phenomenal success as a player and developer of champion teams has been equalled by none. In his fascinating narrative is reflected the drama of McGraw's own life and the development of the great national game. (Released exclusively thru the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

ARTICLE I.

While arranging the memoranda for backtracking over thirty years of my baseball life an old friend, a man now high in world affairs, dropped in to see me. He saw what I was doing.

"Say, Mac," he said, "tell me who, in your opinion, makes the best ball player, the college boy or the ignorant young fellow who comes in from the town lots?"

Gave Him Start.

I looked up at him in downright gratitude for the suggestion. It gives me a start—a keynote that I would like to sound thruout these memoirs.

"The college boy, of course," I told him. "He has at the start the very thing the less fortunate young fellow has to acquire. He steps right in with the advantage of mental training. With the same amount of natural common sense behind him the college boy has a full two years' jump on the town lot boy.

"The difference is simply this—the college boy, or anyone with even a partially trained mind, immediately tries to find his faults; the unschooled fellow usually tries to hide his. The moment a man locates his faults he can quickly correct them. The man who thinks he is keeping his mistakes under cover will never advance a single step until he sees the light."

After College Men.

That in a nutshell is the difference and it may explain why I have steadfastly tried to get college boys with natural ability on my many ball clubs. Usually, they arrive quicker and last longer.

Some of our greatest stars have never been to college, but that does not mean that they were better off without such training. It means that they had brains enough to see the handicap and thru persistence and determination overcame it. Men of this type are Hans Wagner, Tris Speaker, Napoleon Lajole, Delehanty—oh, a lot of them. I might add that Hughey Jennings and myself also were of that type, but we were quick to see the need of what other young fellows had been given by their parents. As to how we did it I will tell later on.

It is not my purpose to moralize, even if I am at the age where men begin to get philosophical and point out things to the youngsters. In the first place, it is hard to make the youngsters listen. I do think, tho, that all successful endeavors in life are based on that idea of being able to find faults and of being just as quick to correct them.

Why Giants Won.

That is largely the way we won the last world's series.

I have been somewhat at a loss to know just what in my thirty years of baseball would be of the most interest. Candidly, I didn't know where to start.

To get a line, tho, we sent out questionnaires to fifty men in different sections of the country—some veteran players and some fans. We made a point of not asking too many men of expert knowledge. In these questionnaires we asked for suggestions as to what the public would be most interested in—what questions that particular person would like to have answered.

The first one came in from a major league umpire—a man of imagination and understanding.

"1. They would like to know," he began, "how the Giants won the world's series."

"2. Tell why you shifted from 'waiting out' the Yank pitchers to swinging at the first ball. Several times you make this shift."

Said Nothing to Players.

In the first place, we won the world's series because we thought we could win. Tho we said nothing, we took advantage of the fact that our opponents and the public had underestimated the strength of our pitchers.

After the end of the season I did not say one word to our players about the series until the day before it actually began. I purposely kept away from them. In the meantime the newspapers were full of discussions of the weakness of our pitchers and of the strength of the Yank pitchers. They told of what Ruth and Meusel would do to us, and so on. This put the odds up to 7 to 5 with the Yanks as favorites. Not once did I discuss this with the men.

On the day before the first game I went to the club house and had a heart-to-heart talk with the players.

"You can beat these fellows," I told them. "I don't think there is a question about it. We have a big advantage in that they are the favorites. Not once since we started on our last drive have you pitchers failed to come thru when called on, and the rest of the team has backed you up. You can do it just as well in this series. All you've got to do is to play ball just as if you were playing a regular game in mid-season. There is no difference. The team that gets impressed with the idea that there is a difference will become self-conscious and lose. Now, practically all of you have played in a big series and it is nothing new to you. In a way you have observed the playing of our opponents. A lot of people have an idea that because I frequently changed pitchers in our last twenty games these pitchers were not able to stand the pace. You know better than that. We changed them for very good reasons. We'll change them in this series if necessary, but I don't think it will be necessary. All I ask of you is forget about those odds — those figures merely represent the opinions of sporting writers. Get out there and play baseball just as you have all season. I'll do the directing and if anything goes wrong I'll take the responsibility."

That is all that I ever said to them.

No Fear of Ruth.

It might surprise many to know that at no time did we have the slightest fear of Ruth. There seemed to be an impression that I was unfamiliar with the playing of Ruth and Schang. As a matter of fact I knew more about Ruth, Schang and Baker than any other members of the Yankee team. My club has played in full twenty games against Ruth. That naturally ought to give me a pretty good line on him.

I might say right here that we caught Ruth in one of his slumps and we did everything we could to make it worse for him. He is a ball player of the freak type that is likely to bust up a game at any moment. Nobody ever could hit a ball as far as he, and it was my business to see that he didn't get hold of one. Under those circumstances the natural thing to do was to pitch him slow ones. It is difficult for a long hitter to brace himself against a ball that barely lobs over the plate.

I signalled for every ball that was pitched to Ruth during the last world's series. In fact, I gave the signals for practically every ball that was pitched during the series by our pitchers. They preferred that I do it. I think ball players, as a rule, can do a more workman-like job when they feel that some one else is taking the responsibility. Those who watched the games may have noticed that the catcher invariably turned and looked at the bench. I gave him the sign which he in turn gave to the pitcher.

No Guesswork.

This was not done in any slipshod or guesswork manner. To give you an idea of our thoroness, we pitched but nine curves and three fast balls to Ruth thruout the series. All the rest were slow balls. Of these twelve—the nine curves and three fast balls—eleven of them set the big fellow on his ear, as we say. He got just one foul off those twelve strikes. And usually, we crossed him with the curve when there were men on bases. Our respect for the way he tears into a fast ball is indicated by our giving him but three to hit at during the entire series.

The trick, tho, that broke the Yanks in two was a brand new play that we pulled on them and repeated on two occasions when they became the most dangerous. The public seems to have overlooked this play in the excitement.

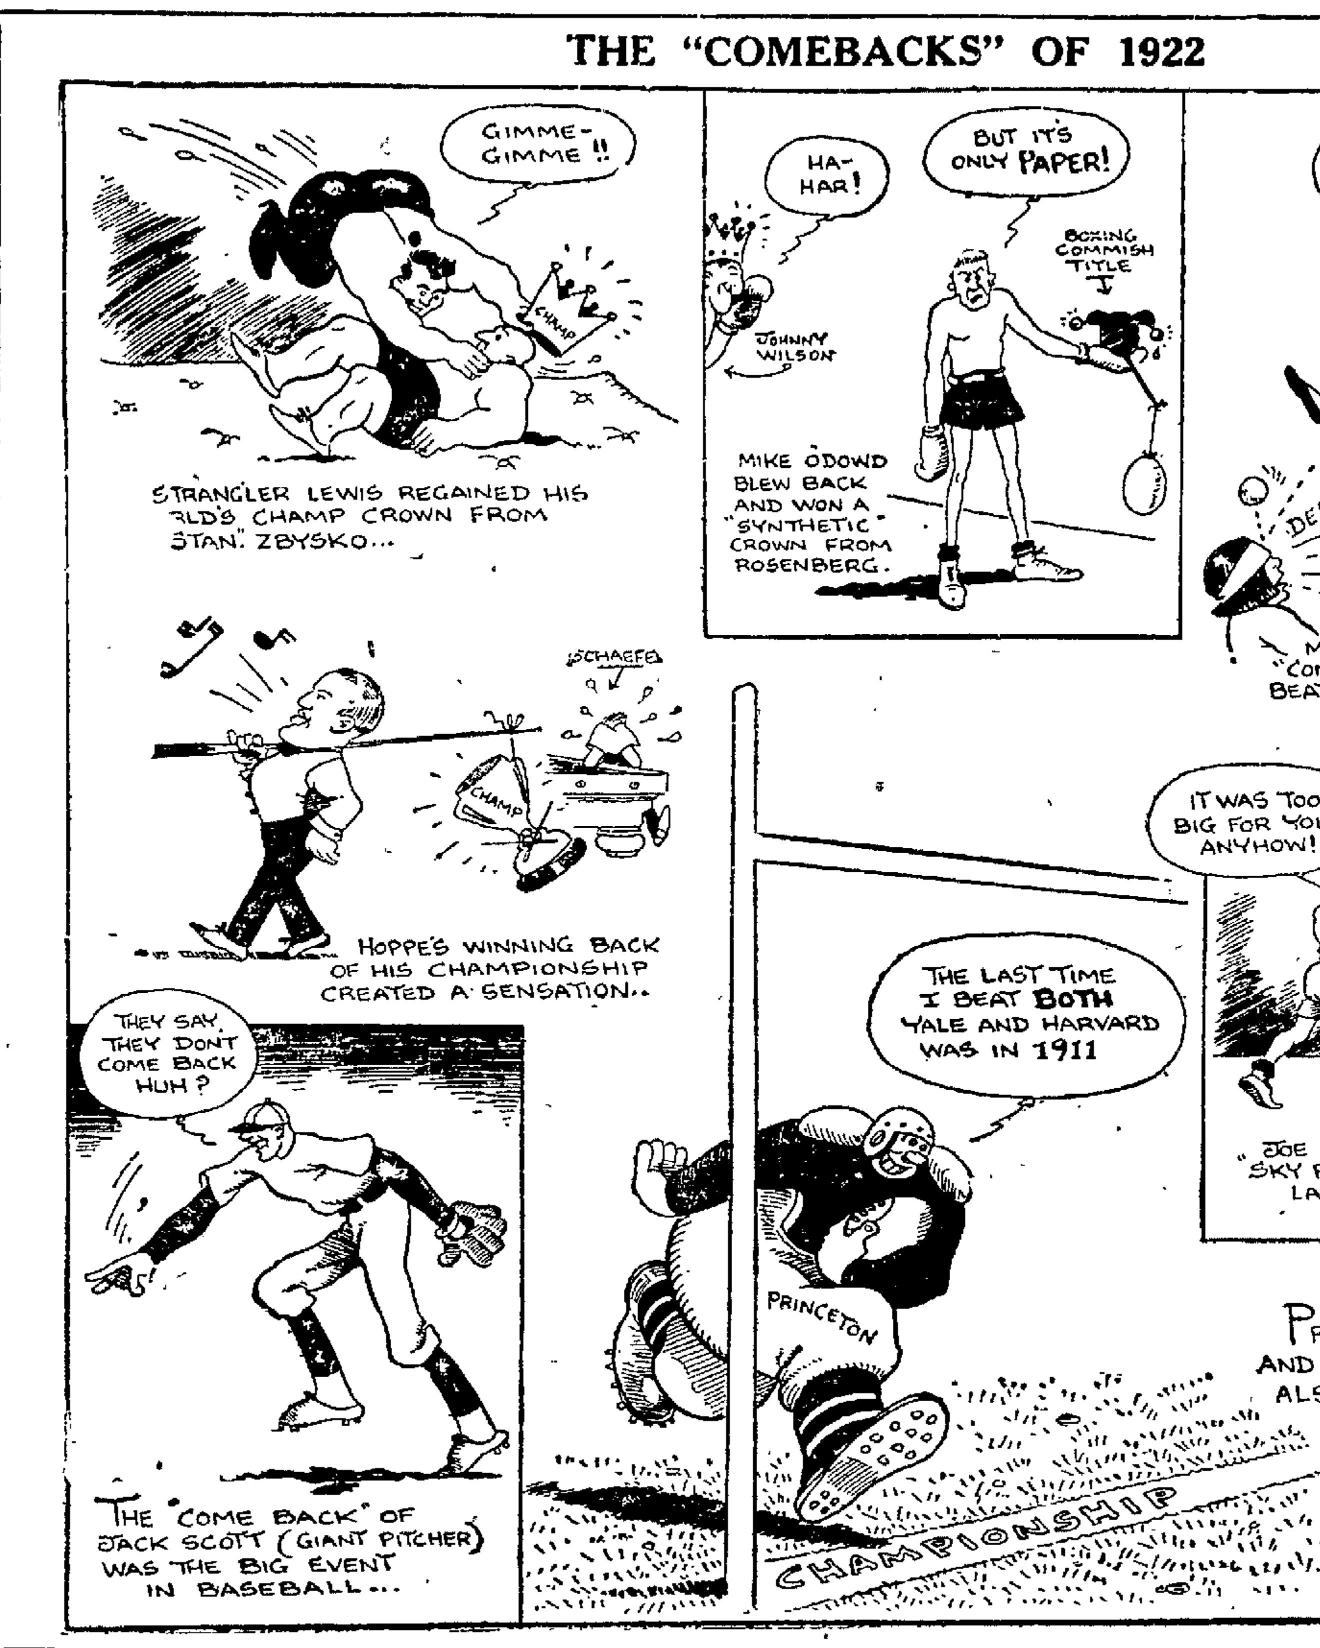

But I am running into my second chapter.

THE "COMEBACKS" OF 1922

COLONEL HUSTON IS STILL IN BASEBALL

Part Owner of New York Yanks Rocked Major Leagues With Announcement of Sale of His Half Some Time Ago.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Colonel T. L. Huston is still half owner of the Yankees. After jolting the baseball world with the recent announcement that he had sold his half of the team to Colonel Jacob Ruppert, he exploded an even greater bomb with the surprising statement that he was still very much in the running and going strong.

The reason for this sudden reversal of decision is more or less cloaked in mystery. Huston admits that after the first deal had been gone over in detail certain points arose upon which he and Ruppert were unable to agree and as they could arrive at no satisfactory agreement they both decided the best thing for all concerned would be for Huston to take off his coat and stay a while longer. And now that he is still on the inside looking out, Huston admits that it's a right comfortable feeling.

Huston denied that his intention to remain in baseball had been influenced in any way by Ban Johnson or any of the latter's friends, declaring he would not stay in the game merely for the privilege of fighting with Johnson.

PERU FIVE WINS AND LOSES

Drops Game With the Haskell Indians, But Defeats Lawrence City Team.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Jan. 4.—The championship Nebraska state teachers' college basket ball five of Peru split even in its practice games in Lawrence when it lost to the Haskell Indians 14 to 15 and won from the Lawrence chamber of commerce quintet last night 21 to 14.

Coach W. B. Spears and his squad leave for Kansas City Friday to play the Kansas City athletic club team. The visitors led the Indians 7 to 5 at the end of the first half and were leading 14 to 5 near the end of the game. Then the Braves rallied and won. Wimer, center for the teachers, was their star. He made four field goals against the chamber of commerce and three goals against the Indian. Capt. Fred Rithert also played well scoring a goal and two free throws against the Indians and a goal and five free tosses.

MISS RYAN HAS BLISTERED HAND

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California tennis star, has been forced to withdraw from the women's singles tournament here because of a blistered hand.

UNIVERSITY PLACE OPENS AT FREMONT

Young Methodists Working Hard in Preparation for Hard Schedule—Prospects Good for Winning Combination.

The University Place high school basket tossers have been putting in some hard practices preparing for one of the stiffest schedules they have bumped up against for some time. In a practice game Thursday evening with the Hickman cagesters the young Methodists piled up a score of 52 while their opponents registered 27. Twenty men were used during the game so Coach Kahm had a good opportunity to try out his men and see what material he really had.

The suburbanites only have three letter men back this season, the others graduating last year. Captain Warren was an all-state man last year. He was chosen by this paper as all state forward and was given honorable mention by several others. Other candidates who have been showing up well are Weld, Butler, Boell, Roper, Aden, Loder, Seng, Duey, Marsh and Wernimont. Some of these are new men but they should fit into a winning combination.

Captain Warren and Yetter will probably be placed at forward, Ball at the pivot position and Weld, Butler or Boell at the two guards. This will compose a fast as well as shifty team. The young Methodists' schedule is not quite finished. They are hoping to add several other games which can be played at home, to the list. The schedule as it now stands:

January 12—Fremont at Fremont.
January 18—Nelson at Nelson.
January 19—Sutton at Sutton.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Two world's swimming marks were lowered in the Illinois Athletic club open tank meet here last night.

Johnny Weissmuller, world's 220 yard free style champion, lowered his own record at 2:18 2-5 by 4 2-5 seconds. Weissmuller, pressed to the limit by Oliver Horn of the I. A. C., swam the course in 2:14 flat.

Dick Howell, school boy natator, swimming against Norman Ross, former tank champion of the country, won the 440 yard free style race in the record time of 5:03 4-5.

"Wee Willie" Keeler Leaves Behind Two World's Batting Records

"Wee Willie" Keeler left one world's record behind him which may never be equaled.

For eight consecutive years, from 1894 to 1901, he hammered out more than 200 safe hits each season for an average of never less than .355 and for a grand average of .383.

Ty Cobb holds the American league records of 200 hits per season for eight years, but not in succession.

Here is the record which famous hitters will be aiming at for years to come:

Year	Games	A.B.	R.	H.	Pct.	Rank
1894....	131	594	164	218	.367	12
1895....	131	560	161	221	.394	3
1896....	127	546	154	214	.392	4
1897....	128	562	147	243	.432	1
1898....	128	564	126	214	.379	1
1899....	143	571	141	215	.376	6
1900....	137	568	106	208	.366	3
1901....	136	559	124	209	.355	3
8 years..1058		4554	1123	1742	.383	—

Keeler also left behind him a major record of hitting safely in forty-four consecutive games. He set this mark in 1897, from April 22 to June 18.

George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns closely approached this record last season when he carried along for forty-one games.

Historic Bets on American Tracks.

"Chicago" O'Brien Piled Up Fortune Playing the Horses Far Back.

"There's the man who ran a trowel into a million," said Jim Beatty, the bookmaker, pointing to "Chicago" O'Brien, who for ten years has been one of the biggest plungers on the American tracks. And of the big operators who were conspicuous during last season "Chicago" O'Brien and "Honest John" Kelly were the biggest losers. O'Brien got a bad start in May on the Kentucky derby. Kelly stopped at Belmont park on labor day, when he walked out $55,000 loser on the season. "I thought it was about time for me to cut out racing and step out and make a living," says Kelly.

"Chicago" O'Brien was a bricklayer in Chicago, some years ago. In those days the bricklayers started out in the early morning with a trowel in their pocket, and walked from one job to another until they found work. One rainy day Tom O'Brien failed to find work and a friend induced him to go out to the races at Washington park. He had never been interested in the horses and knew practically nothing about the racing game. But the first day he visited the track he developed an uncanny method of picking winners and from that day his trowel has been idle.

"Chicago" O'Brien is the most noted odds on player in the country. He made a fortune on Man O'War, backing the great thorobred no matter how short the price was, and he picked up another fortune during the two-year-old career of Morvich.

A Modest Operator.

O'Brien's theory is that a favorite is favorite because it is the best horse in the race and the shorter the price the better the horse. If a horse opens at 4 to 5 and goes to 3 to 5 or 2 to 5, "Chicago" throws open the throttle on the bankroll a little wider. He is probably the most modest operator on the tracks and it is impossible to tell by his actions when watching a race whether he is winning or losing.

After Morvich's unexampled record as a two-year-old O'Brien became convinced, for some reason known only to himself that the Block horse had no chance to win the Kentucky derby. The future books offered 3 and 4 to 1 against Morich and there was plenty of money around. O'Brien took all he could get, turning layer for the race.

"How much did you lose on the derby?" O'Brien was asked.

"Why, that was away last spring," he answered.

"He won't say how much," laughed Jim Beatty, "but the night of the derby he went home and shined up his trowel.

It is variously estimated that "Chicago' O'Brien lost between $100,000 and $150,000 on the race.

Nebraska Moves Up Six Places Among 250 College Football Teams As Ranked by Grid Statistician

For the past three years I. B. Thomas, athletic statistician and a member of the Tufts college grid team of 1899, has been compiling a list of leading grid teams of the country. This list appears in the Intercollegiate Athletics magazine. Last year Nebraska was among the second group in thirteenth place. This year the Huskers were among the first ten and in seventh place, bettering their position by six places.

Mr. Thomas ranks the teams on a point system, somewhat intricate but believed by many to be the fairest of all methods. The first group of ten, in which Nebraska is placed with the points given each team:

1—Princeton, 1.971.
2—California, 1.747.
3—Cornell, 1.720.
4—West Virginia, 1.705.
5—Army, 1.704.
6—Iowa, 1.575.
7—Nebraska, 1.661.
8—Michigan, 1.562.
9—Pittsburgh, 1.530.
10—Lafayette, 1.499.

Syracuse, the only team to blemish the Huskers 1922 record is in the second division of ten. This group is composed of North Carolina, Vanderbilt, Syracuse, Navy, Harvard, Notre Dame, Holy Cross, Boston College, Chicago and Ohio Wesleyan.

Drake which went thru the Missouri Valley season undefeated and recently feted its team at a banquet at which time gold footballs inscribed "Missouri Valley Champions of 1922" were presented, is in the third group or twenty-ninth place from the top.

DULL'S CLAIM NOT ALLOWED

Suspended Twice by Beatrice State League Club Pitcher Filed Claim.

Beatrice Express: The claim of Hollie Dull against the Beatrice club of the Nebraska state elague was disallowed by the national board, the ruling body of the minor league, at the meeting held in Louisville a short time ago, according to a report given out by Secretary Farrell.

It will be remembered that Dull was fined $100 and suspended by the directors of the local club for slapping "Chunk" Johnston an outfielder, during an argument on the ball diamond.

Dull refused to return to the team after his suspension was lifted unless his fine was remitted. This, Dull says, the local directors agreed to do. With this understanding Dull returned to the team, but was later suspended for a second time.

When Dull went to the local directors for a settlement they refused to pay him in full, but held out the $100 he was fined, which Dull claims the directors promised to remit.

Dull finished the season at Crete, with a semi-pro ball club.

FOUR EXTRA PERIODS FAIL TO BREAK A TIE

BLOOMFIELD, Neb., Jan. 5.—The closest and most interesting game of basketball ever played on the Crofton floor was pulled off there last evening when the Crofton and Bloomfield town teams played a 16-16 tie. The score was tied at 12-12 when the second half ended and an extra five minute period was played. Each team scored two points and the score was still tied; another five minute period resulted in a 15-15 tie and a third five minute session left the score still tied, each team counting one point. A fourth period was played, neither team scoring and it was then decided to call the game a draw. Bloomfield recently defeated Crofton here by a score of 36 to 19.

The directors have several applications for the position of manager, "Clint" Claire, former manager of the old Grand Island club, being among the number.

AMERICAN FIGURE IS ON ITS WAY TO RUIN

Women Selling Out Beauty to Style Mongers, Declares Instructor in Dress Designing at Chicago Academy.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—American women are selling out their beauty to the style mongers.

Dressing to the dictates of fashion is ruining the feminine figure.

Charming busts are giving way to undulating hips, and the Venus woman has become the faddiest femme.

This was the substance of an interview today with Ralph Moni, instructor in women's dress designing at the Chicago academy of fine arts.

"The American woman has fallen prey to the French dressmaker and is sacrificing her beauty to the fads and foibles of fashion," declared Moni, who teaches that dressing is an art, and each woman a canvas to be made or marred by the right strokes of design.

It is not for the fashion arbiters to say what a woman should wear, according to Moni.

"Each woman has her own problem of dress to solve, depending on the shape of her figure," declared the style expert.

"Fat women for example, should never wear bright colors or tight clothes," he said. "They accentuate their fatness. But when the fashion kings in Paris decree that lurid colors and skin-tight dresses are the vogue, the fat ladies are the first to fall in with the dictum.

Stout women can look thinner and prettier by wearing long-lined gowns, subdued colors and by avoiding ornaments on the hip or hem lines.

"Slender women on the other hand, should wear clothes that accentuate the lines of the figure.

"The long loose slinker skirt with belt draped around the hip line perverts the beauty of a thin woman, emphasizing the hips, which are anything but beautiful."

Passing of the corset is taking the Venus out of the feminine figure, according to Moni, who recommends a corset for every woman.

"The old iron stave models are not to be condemned," said Moni, "and every woman should wear at least a fur-lined corset from the waistline to the hips."

"Checking corsets," he continued, "is a fad that is developing large undulating hips at the expense of good looking busts.

"Women should study their best points and adapt present day modes in dress—the result would be a nation of well dressed beauties."

BELGIUM ADOPTS WIRELESS

Big Tower Being Built to Enable Communication With United States and Other Nations.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 5.—The Belgian government is building a new wireless station to maintain permanent service with the United States, the Belgian Congo and with South America.

The new structure, already under way, will cost 20,000,000 francs, will be erected at Ruysselede in Flanders, and have a capacity of 60,000 words a day. This station will be only for transmitting messages and a receiving station will be built about ten miles from Brussels.

The erection of the big wireless station marks the end of Belgium's seclusion. Before the war she refused to occupy herself with any European and world questions, secure in her guaranteed neutrality. With the German invasion shattered that security, the Belgian government was forced to either make an entry into world affairs or disappear. Her decision is now history.

As a result of her decision, the cable bill of the Belgians increased enormously. In 1913, she exchanged 1,700,608 words with North America; in 1921, the total rose to 3,128,146. The development of Belgian Congo since the war has been remarkable. From a cable business of 58,436 words with the Congo in 1913, Belgium increased to 198,842 words in 1921.

Maurice Groshon, a member of the Wyoming state railway commission, is a visitor at the state capitol. The Wyoming commission has the added job of fixing the values of the railways of the state, and the principal object of Mr. Groshon's visit is to find out how Nebraska goes about the task. The law in Wyoming is not as far-reaching as that in Nebraska, and the commission is hampered considerably in getting at all of the necessary facts.

NEW ANGLE OF AN OLD CASE

Peter Long Defending His $75,000 Judgment in Supreme Court for Second Time.

For the second or third time the supreme court hat the case of Long vs. Krause, against it. Long sold a piece of land in Sebridan county back in 1917 to John H. Krause, and afterwards sued him for close to a million. He claimed that Krause concealed from him the fact that on this land was a large lake the waters of which were heavily impregnated with potash salts, and that Krause made a lot of money during the war by selling this to manufacturing plants. He secured judgment for $75,000. The supreme court affirmed this judgment. Later Krause filed suit to enjoin the collection of the judgment, claiming that it was obtained by perjury. He died while the suit was pending, and it is being prosecuted by his heirs. Judge Westover sustained the request for an injunction, and Friday the appeal of Long was argued and submitted to the court. He claims that the perjury was all threshed out and decided in the original case.

The Seventy-third Indiana general assembly convened.

RETIRING GOVERNOR HAS NEW TIMEPIECE

EX-GOVERNOR S. R. McKELVIE.

Just before retiring from office, Governor McKelvie received a magnificent clock of the grandfather type, presented to him by officers and employes of the six cod departments of which he was the hear. The governor has a watch and will not carry this new timepiece, but he is shown in the picture listening to its soothing tick, tick.

CORRICK HAS A DAY CLASS

CHIEF CLERK OF HOUSE CONDUCTS TRAINING SCHOOL.

Takes Advantage of Departure of Legislators Altho He Faced Problem of Paying for Several Dinners.

The saying "when cats are away the mice will play" did not hold good Friday in connection with the office help of the chief clerk of the house of representatives. The legislators who appropriate funds for the payment of salaries to house employes, had adjourned over Sunday. There was a fine opportunity to close up shop. But shop was not closed.

Prof. F. P. Corrick, A. B., A. M., D. D. and some more, conducted day school in the little work shop just off the house chamber. Prof. T. W. Bass, M. D. and some more, assisted the dean in the work of instructing stenographers on house procedure. Mr. Corrick is chief clerk of the house and Mr. Bass is assistant chief clerk.

The young ladies who wanted very much to be out kicking their heels in the snow, or attending the bargain sales, pouted in fun and then entered into the psirit of the arrangement. The chief clerk and his first assistant dictated house procedure of an average day. There were motions, amendments, resolutions, roll call and all teh little details that go into the daily house journal. Teh students were required to re-write and correct until the professors were willing to grade them at one hundred plus. The chief clerk faced this problem: the purchase of a few dinners for those who had patiently stood the test.

DEATH LIST IS SWELLED

TWO KNOWN DEAD AS RESULT OF BRIDGE ACCIDENT.

List of Known Missing Increased to Twenty-three With Probability That Exact Number May Never Be Known.

KELSO, Wash., Jan. 5.—Kelso's list of known dead today as a result of Wednesday night's collapse of the Cowlitz river bridge has swelled to two and the list of known missing to twenty-three.

During the night Harry Kirk, who with G. O. McDonald has been seriously injured, died after making a game struggle for life. McDonald died early Thursday morning.

The estimated list of dead has been set at thirty-five by Deputy Coroner W. D. Vannoten, who has arrived at this figure by a careful check of homes and places of employment, hotel registers and lodging house lists thru the city and vicinity. Included in this estimated thirty-five dead is the list of twenty-three missing. In the opinion of Vannoten there must have been at least a dozen unknown workmen on the bridge at the time.

These men had been loitering about the employment offices in West Kelso thruout the day and had started for East Kelso at about the time of the disaster, inquiry has revealed. There may have been more than a dozen.

Coroner Vannoten insists that his estimate of the dead is only an estimate of an eye-witness, bolstered by official inquiry. There may be scores buried under the bridge wreckage or scattered along the bottom of the Cowlitz and the Columbia rivers, he suggested. Not until the bottom of the Cowlitz for two miles below the city and the Columbia river at the confluence of the two streams have been dragged will the total number of dead be ascertained. Lowering water in the spring may reveal still further bodies, and numbers of them never may be found.

TWO YEARS FOR KOTAS

count of the indictment, and fined $200 on the other.

Aaron Marks, former Omaha attorney and army officer, who pleaded guilty some months ago to selling liquor in Lincoln, is to serve five months in the Douglas county jail. Howard Molthy, ex-policeman of Omaha and later a church janitor, was involved in the same transaction and drew sixty days in jail.

Tom Barker of Belmont was fined $100 and given thirty days in the Lancaster county jail for letting another man operate a still on his place during state fair week. He is a truck gardener and bears a good reputation as a business man, the court is informed.

John Behrens, Seward county farmer, was also penalized for letting another man, Mike Herzog, put up a still on his place. He advanced money to Herzog, and sold some moonshine to get his money back. He was fined $100 on one count and given thirty days in the Dodge county jail on the other two. He has a sick wife and a houseful of little children.

Ted Garten cried while telling the judge that relatives had enticed him into the liquor business. He was fined $100 and given sixty days in the Dodge county jail. Erven H. Krantz of Omaha, arrested with him, had no defense to offer, and was fined $200. These two were caught while delivering Christmas cheer in an alley near Twelfth and R streets.

James Lou Little was fined $200 and given thirty days in jail for illegal possession, transportation and sale of liquor. Dan Little and Joseph M. Wilson, arrested with him, were fined $100 each. These men were caught by a party of officers lying in wait for another bunch of bootleggers from Omaha.

James Blackwell, colored, was arraigned on charges of possession and transportation of liquor on October 27, having been in jail since that date in default of bond. He was fined $100 and costs.

Spillman, Assistant Attorney General C. L. Dort and Secretary J. E. Hart of the state banking department.

NOTABLES AT KIWANIS CLUB

W. J. BRYAN HEADLINER AT FRIDAY'S LUNCHEON.

Old and New Governors and Club Presidents and Head of National Farm Bureau Among the Speakers.

"It would be unbecoming for me to say anything to mar the levity of the occasion," said W. J. Bryan as he rose to address the Kiwanis club Friday, and so he made one of his inimitable talks, quite in keeping with the occasion. It included the customary poking fun at himself, and this time at his brother, whose accomplishments he said he had never fully appreciated until hearing his inaugural address. "I cannot imagine what a majority he might have piled up if he hadn't talked," Mr. Bryan said.

He spoke of the new idea of politics in late years, as against the old feeling that the country was ruined whenever the party lost. Mr. Bryan pointed out how a president couldn't ruin the country if he wanted to, or evn help it very much without a lot of aid.

"Government is a cooperative affair," he said, "and why can we not put politics on a high plane? It was much remarked on when in 1908 Mr. Taft and myself sat at either hand of the toastmaster at a Chicago banquet, for such a thing was unheard of. Why should that be so? Incidentally, I think Mr. Taft took defeat better than any other man in the country, and I am only second; for while I was defeated oftener, I was never beaten so badly. Besides, Mr. Taft gave up something he had, and I only gave up something I wanted."

Mr. Bryan concluded by paying his compliments to Kiwanis and other civic clubs, which he said were doing so much to give men larger vision, stronger purpose and higher ideals.

Ex-Governor McKelvie and Governor Charles Bryan spoke briefly, congratulating and condoling with each other, and Ross Curtice turned over the president's chair and gavel to Sam Waugh, newly elected incumbent. The last speaker of the day was C. 7. Bradfute of Xeniz, O., president of the American farm bureau federation.

"The American farmer is the most efficient in the world," Mr. Bradfute said, "and the Nebraska farmer is up to the mark. But while the 124,000 farms in this state are producing $275,000,000 annually, the farmer's dollar is about 35 per cent short in purchasing power. If his dollar was worth the same as anyone's, each farmer would have $700 a year more to spend. As business men, I advise you to consider what that would mean to you, and see what you can do about solving the problem under which the farmer is laboring."

WATER TANK IS INSTALLED

Also Bucket and Glass for Use of Thirsty Members of the Lower House.

For a day or so after the legislature convened, the lower branch was like a lone horseman on the Sahara. There was no water tank such as beautifies railroad properties in tank towns. But for this last day or more, there has been moisture in plenty. The old keg was restored. A galvanized bucket was placed upon the top of it and a crystal-clear glass at the side.

It is said that one of the new democratic members was informed that members of the minority were to drink from the bucket, the glass being for republicans only. But regardless of a supposed democratic thirst, the bucket has seen little service. It is an unhandy thing to drink from.

The tank is located snug up to a window in a light corner. It is thus possible for one to inspect the contents before he molstens his lip. The fluid must resemble water only. It must be clear and colorless. It must have the flavor that nature alone can give. It must be satisfying but not over-satisfying. There cannot be that more or less offensive after-smack that comes from drinking colored fluids patterned after the bonded blends of the long ago.

CRIPPLED STATE'S RADIO

Someone Unknown Said to Have Prevented Transmission of Inaugural Messages From Capitol.

In regard to the breakdown of the state radio apparatus when the inaugural messages of the outgoing and incoming governors were being sent out to receiving stations, Secretary George E. Johnson of the department of public works said:

"Wednesday evening, some one gained entrance to the wireless room in the Capitol and the transmission station was out of commission Thursday morning. I worked on the station for about an hour before the inauguration started and it was working until Governor McKelvie had finished a part of his message, when someone lowered the aerial on the roof sufficient to short circuit the lead in wires, putting the station out of commission, blowing out a condensor, and causing several minor break downs.

"After working until twelve o'clock last night, I got the station to working temporarily and will finish the adjustments today so that the regular service of broadcasting market reports can be continued."

NO BODIES FOUND.

KELSO, Wash., Jan. 5.—Salvage crews and divers had found no bodies in the Cowlitz bridge wreckage up to 10 a. m. Losers Lead With a 14 to 10 Count at the End of First Half.

WAHOO, Neb., Jan. 5.—Wahoo opened its basket ball season at home Thursday evening by defeating the fast Ravenna team by a score of 32 to 23, Ravenna presented a strong quintet which worked well and had the home team guessing the first half. After Ravenna had gained a 14 to 10 lead in the first half the Wahoo cagesters came up from behind the last ten minutes of play and nosed them out 22 to 9. Both teams put the best they had in action during the entire game and those who watched with great interest can now say Wahoo has another winning aggregation this year. Finley and W. APPEALS FROM CONVICTION.

George W. Hopperton, convicted in Dawes county of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm upon Leslie W. Dotson, filed an appeal in supreme court Friday. Hopperton is a former railroad man who runs a pool hall in Crawford. He and Dotson were old friends. The latter came from Edgemont to act as a guard on railroad property during the strike last summer. He accused Hopperton of calling him a scab and Hopperton wanted to know why Dotson had sent him an insulting message. He says Dotson hit him first. The latter was badly hurt in the melee that followed by being hit with a heavy tobacco cutter, and the jury said Hopperton threw it.

QUICK ACTION MUCH NEEDED

BRADFUTE OF FARM BUREAU POINTS THE WAY.

Unity of Purpose and Instant Action Necessary to Secure Results Much Desired by the Producers.

O. F. Bradfute, national president of the Farm Bureau Federation, declared Friday morning before the session of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation that the American farmers were in need of an organization which could act and act promptly in all cases where their interests were concerned. To effect this unity of purpose and action, he says that it is as possible for a farmers organization to procure competent advisory heads of economic and legal importance as it is for other big business heads to accomplish the same end. With the farming interests vitally important to more than thirty per cent of the population of America, he says that he considers this organization movement the factor of greatest importance to the American farmers.

Where the Dollar Shrinks.

According to Mr. Bradfute, the farmers of Nebraska have among themselves reached a point of normalcy in their crop and meat productions but have not reached a similar point in their exchange rate among other classes of producers. He cited the high cost of transportation rates that are charged against the farmers cost of production, and quoted statistics to show that the farmers' dollar was exchanged to other classes of merchandisers at less than its value. To illustrate a comparison in values, he said that during 1913 the average railroad man was paid a salary equivalent to the cost of 1700 bushels of corn. Today, the railroader gets an average salary of 4,100 bushels of corn. He also said that during the last nine years that the price of coal had increased from 2 1-2 bushels of corn to the ton to 7 to 9 bushels per ton. These two factors have materially increased the production costs in the farmer's merchandising program, because he must sell his produce at terminal market price with a reduction made of the transportation charges.

He believes that when a farmers' organization has been perfected that can act quickly and with effect, that remedies can be found for the conditions which now exist.

Would Form a Combine.

The Nebraska farm bureau federation passed a resolution which favored the organization of a cooperative association for the marketing of grain and other farm products. The plan suggests that all of the farmers and their organizations get together in this plan and back up the proposed organization. The plan of organization suggested that three representatives each from the farmers' educational and cooperative union of Nebraska, the Nebraska wheat growers' association, the equity union of Nebraska, the state grange of Nebraska, the Nebraska farmers' cooperative elevator association and the farm bureau federation meet in convention in Lincoln before February 1, 1923, for the purpose of organizing this new association.

The publicity committee of the Nebraska farm bureau federation reported that their organ, "Review," should be continued under the provision that it could be self-supporting. The advisability of soliciting advertisings was discussed but the policy of the paper was finally left to the decision of the executive board.

High Transportation Cost.

The transportation committee reported that they were in favor of an investigation of the present freight rates, that they wished a statement made concerning proportion of transportation costs to final costs of their products, investigations made concerning the prohibitive transportation rates made to potato, hay and fruit growers. They also wished an investigation made of the excessive telephone rates which were being charged in some localities.

President Bradfute emphasized the point that when the farm bureau renders the right sort of service there will be no trouble about the payment of the dues of the members. He told what Ohio farmers had accomplished by co-operative associations. They, for instance, obtained 2 cents more than the Chicago quotations for butter fat. Before the cooperative plan was under way the price was 3 cents below Chicago figures. Cooperative wool associations resulted in the farmers of that state receiving from ten to fifteen cents more for their product.

Where Trouble Lies.

"The trouble with the farmers they do not get together," he said. "When men in other lines of business meet in conference to carry out some cooperative plan they leave that conference with one purpose in mind to carry out. It happens that farmers often meet in conference but they leave it with no unity of purpose or action. There is where they are blind. Nebraska farmers must get together and speak as one man. They will not accomplish much until they do."

ALLIED OCCUPATION COSTLY

Germans Submit List of Goods Furnished Foreign Armies, Including Wine Glasses.

BERLIN.—(By Mail.)—Occupation of the German Rhine region involves free delivery to the French, British and American troops by the German government almost everything from complete sets of house furnishings down to particular shapes and sizes of wine and beer glasses.

The allies originally occupied only thirty-six German towns, but have increased their military holdings from time to time until now 207 towns are under control of the allied armies along the Rhine. Many castles and dwellings—furniture, furnishings and all—have been taken over by these troops.

In a speech in the reichstag Representative Stuckler declared that during the period from the fall of 1920 until the summer of 1922—one and three-fourths years—the German government was required to manufacture and deliver to the entente forces in Germany:

Furniture and furnishings for 1,400 saloons, 2,500 gentlemen's rooms, 5,000 dining rooms, 10,300 bedrooms, 4,600 kitchens, 180 clubrooms, 2,900 armchairs, 1,800 wicker furnishings, 6,200 other chairs, 1,400 cushion chairs, 2,300 chairs, 2,100 cushion furniture upholsterings, bedsteads for adults, 3,500 beds for children, 3,900 wardrobes, 3,400 lavatories, 300 lounges, 800 ladies' writing decks, 500 toilet dressing tables, 1,600 irons, 18,000 carpets, 175,000 napkins, 6,900 dining services, 8,900 coffee services, 4,300 tea services, 4,000 tea cups, 25,000 porcelain plates, 72,000 white wine glasses, 51,000 red wine glasses, 15,000 port wine glasses, 45,000 champagne glasses, 58,000 liquor glasses, 26,000 beer glasses and 9,000 wine jugs.

Around 3,000 kilometers of linens were manufactured and delivered for bed and table cloths.

TOLSTOY'S SON AT WORK

Sings and Plays Piano to Earn Living for His Seven Children at School in France.

PARIS, (By mail)—To the long list of Russian aristocrats whose fabulous wealth faded away with the advent of communism and who are now earning a living like ordinary mortals, driving taxicabs in the streets of Paris or serving French and other war profiteers in the boulevard restaurants, have just been added three names which evoke the glories of the czarist days.

Count Michael Tolstoy, son of the famous novelist and philosopher; Madame Spirodovitch, wife of the emperor's bodyguard and governor of the Crimea, together with Prince Obolensky, scion of one of the oldest Russian families, are competing with jazzband artists and professional dancers in a Champs Elysees dance hall.

Madame Spirodovitch, who is first prize winner of the conservatory of Moscow, sings gypsy and Russian folk songs accompanied at the piano by Count Tolstoy, who, it is recalled, was once an officer of the division of death and aide to Grand Duke Michael. Prince Obolensky is a clever dancer. Telling of the decision of the trio to make their living in a "dancing," Count Tolstoy said:

"It is very simple. We are all broke. I have been so since 1918 and I have seven children in school in France. I must earn enough to pay their way. I have too much respect for the memory of my father to attempt to write, but I can sing and play the piano."

KAISER'S HONEYMOON OVER

Wilhelm Now Able to Devote a Little Time to Business, Suspended for New Bride.

DOORN, Holland.—(By Mail.)—The ex-kaiser's honeymoon within the castle walls at Doorn has ended and the former monarch now has a little time for business.

Wilhelm, who refused to bother with reading his letters and telegrams of congratulations, to say nothing of his regular routine correspondence during the first days of his new married life, is now busy clearing up accumulated work.

Two big baskets of telegrams were received on the wedding day and carefully put away until Wilhelm had time to look at them. He issued specific orders that they were not to be opened until he could take time from his new bride to care for them himself.

Even a letter brought to him by his sister, Princess Victoria Schaumburg Lippe, with her personal word that it was "very important and needed immediate attention" was put away in his pocket with the laughing comment:

"I've better business now to attend to. I'll take care of it later on."

LOSES ONLY HAND BY SHOT

Necessary to Amputate Member of Fifteen-Year-Old Son of William Schroeder.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 5.—William Schroeder, fifteen, son of Charles Schroeder of Lawrence, lost his right hand when a shotgun accidently exploded and tore away the thumb and first fingers. Amputation of the whole hand was necessary when final examination was made at the Mary Lanning Memorial hospital where he was hurriedly brought. Because of loss of blood his condition is still very grave. It was said that the boy placed the gun in the corner of a fence and was about to crawl thru the wires when the gun exploded. This case is one for extreme sympathy for the boy, for his left arm is off just below the elbow. Between intense suffering and the fact that he is now without hands William Schroeder is causing the greatest attention of any patient at the hospital.

NEW SCHOOL PROPOSITION

Grand Island Rejects Proposed School Bond Issue at Election—May Build Junior High.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Jan. 5.—The recent proposition for a centralized junior high school at a cost of $320,000 on a site formerly decreed by the voters for a high school has been defeated. The school board is now considering placing before the voters the proposition recommended by its building committee of $549,000 for a south side junior high, a complete new high school and a new kindergarten and grade school. In the recent election the taxation question was one of the issues tho not the only one, on which the voters, for the first time in the history of the city rejected by a substantial majority a proposed school bond issue.

CHOSE WRECKING TO JAIL.

HAMMOND, Ind., Jan. 5.—The owner of a soft drink place chose to have the place wrecked rather than spend six months in jail, after his arrest for the third time for violation of liquor laws.

LOCKED JUDGE IN VAULT.

WINSTED, Conn., Jan. 5.—A district court judge was locked in a vault in the county clerk's office for nearly an hour while the clerk went to lunch. The clerk slammed the door shut, and the judge's call for help was answered by the janitor.

EMILE COUE'S MOST RECENTLY WRITTEN ARTICLES ON AUTO-SUGGESTION

(Copyright, 1923, United States, Great Britain, Canada and South America, by North American Newspaper Alliance and New York World (Press Publishing Company). All rights reserved. Unlicensed reproduction in full or in part expressly prohibited.)

Editor's Note—The Journal today begins publication of a series of exclusive articles written within the last few weeks by Emile Coue, internationally famous auto-suggestion expert. These articles bring to the present date Coue's remarkable system of thought which has startled the world since the writing of his book many months ago. Following this series, Professor Coue will write the results of his demonstrations and clinical observations in American cities. His own signed reports of his progress here will appear in Lincoln only in the Journal.

ARTICLE I.

By Emile Coue.

In beginning this series of articles in The Nebraska State Journal I want to say how glad I am to come into personal contact with the great American public on their own side of the Atlantic. And at the same time I cannot help feeling just a little embarrassed. I have an idea that people on this continent expect from me some wonderful revelation, bordering on the miraculous, whereas, in reality, the message I have to give is so simple that many may be tempted at first to consider it almost insignificant. Let me say right here, however, that simple as my message may be, it will teach those who consent to hear it and to give it fair thought, a key to permanent physical and moral well-being which can never be lost.

To the uninitiated, auto-suggestion or self-mastery is likely to appear disconcerting in its simplicity. But does not every discovery, every invention seem simple and ordinary once it has become vulgarized and the details or mechanism of it known to the man in the street? Not that I am claiming auto-suggestion to be a discovery. Far from it. Auto-suggestion is as old as the hills; only we had forgotten to practice it, and so we need to learn it all over again.

Think of all the forces of the universe readyto serve us. Yet centuries elapsed before man penetrated their secret and discovered the means of utilizing them. It is the same in the domain of thought and mind; we have at our service forces of transcendent value of which we are either completely ignorant or else only vaguely conscious.

The power of thought, of idea, is incommensurable, is immeasurable. The world is dominated by thought. The human being individually is also entirely governed by his own thoughts, good or bad. The powerful action of the mind over the body, which explain the effects of suggestion, was well known to the great thinkers of the middle ages, whose vigorous intelligence embraced the sum of human knowledge.

Every idea conceived by the mind, says Saint Thomas, is an order which the organism obeys. It can also, he adds, engender a disease or cure it.

The efficaciousness of auto-suggestion could not be more plainly stated.

Known to Ancients.

We know, indeed, that the whole human organism is governed by the nervous system, the center of which is the brain—the seat of thought. In other words, the brain, or mind, controls every cell, every organ, every function of the body. That being so, is it not clear that by means of thought, we are the absolute masters of our physical organism and that, as the Ancients showed centuries ago, thought—or suggestion—can and does produce disease or cure it? Pythagoras taught the principles of auto-suggestion to his disciples. He wrote "God the Father, deliver them from their sufferings, and show them what supernatural power is at their call."

Even more definite is the doctrine of Aristotle, which taught that "a vivid imagination compels the body to obey it, for it is a natural principle of movement. Imagination, indeed, governs all the forces of sensibility, while the latter, in its turn, controls the beating of the heart, and thru it, sets in motion all vital functions; thus, the entire organism may be rapidly modified. Nevertheless, however vivid the imagination, it cannot change the form of a hand or foot or other member."

I have particular satisfaction in recalling this element of Aristotle's teaching, because it contains two of the most important, nay, essential principles of my own method of auto-suggestion.

1. The dominating role of the imagination.

2. The results to be expected from the practice of auto-suggestion must necessarily be limited to those coming within the bounds of physical possibility.

I shall deal with these essential points in greater detail in another article.

Unfortunately, all these great truths handed down from antiquity, have been transmitted in the cloudy garb of abstract notions, or shrouded in the mystery of esoteric secrecy, and thus appeared inaccessible to the ordinary mortal. If I have had the privilege of discerning the hidden meaning of the old philosophers, or extracting the essence of a vital principle, and of formulating it in a manner extremely simple and comprehensible to modern humanity, I have also had the joy of seeing it practised with success, by thousands of sufferers for more than a score of years.

Slaves of Suggestion.

Mark well, I am no healer, I can only teach others to cure themselves and to maintain perfect health.

I hope to show, however, that the domain of application of auto-suggestion is practically unlimited. Not only are we able to control and modify our physical functions, but we can develop in any desired direction our moral and mental faculties, merely by the proper exercise of suggestion; in the field of education there is vast scope for suggestion.

From our birth to our death, we are all the slaves of suggestion. Our destinies are decided by suggestion. It is an all-powerful tyrant of which, unless we take heed, we are the blind instruments. Now, it is in our power to turn the tables and to discipline suggestion, and direct it in the way we ourselves wish; then it becomes auto-suggestion; we have taken the reins into our own hands, and have become masters of the most marvelous instrument conceivable. Nothing is impossible to us, except, of course, that which is contrary to the laws of nature and the universe.

How are we to attain this command? We must first thoroly grasp at least the elements of the mechanism of the mental portion of what constitutes the human being. The mental personality is composed of the conscious and the sub-conscious. It is generally believed that the power and acts of a man depend almost exclusively upon his conscious self. It is beginning to be understood, however, that compared with the immensity of the role of the subconscious, that of the conscious self is as a little islet in a vast ocean, subject to storm and tempest.

The subconscious is a permanent, ultra-sensitive photographic plate which nothing escapes. It registers all things, all thoughts, from the most insignificant to the most sublime. But it is more than that. It is the source of creation and inspiration; it is the mysterious power that germinates ideas and effects their materialization in the conscious form of action. If we agree that the point of departure of our joys, our sorrows, our ills, our well-being, our aspirations, of all our emotions, is in our subconscious self, then we may logically deduct that every idea germinated in our mind has a tendency to realization.

The Case of the Lemon.

Hundreds of examples drawn from little incidents of every day existence enable us to verify the truth of all this. To illustrate the action of thought on the emotive faculties, we have but to remember any grave accident or harrowing spectacle of which we have been a witness; immediately to feel the sensations of pain or horror, with greater or less intensity, according to our individual temperament.

A simpler and perhaps even more striking example is the classic one of the lemon. Imagine that you are sucking a juicy, sour lemon, and your mouth will inevitably and instantaneously begin to water. What has happened? Simply this: under the influence of the idea the glands have gone to work and secreted an abundant quality of saliva—almost as much, in fact, as if you had actually taken a bite at a real lemon. Again, just think of a scratching pencil being drawn over a slate, and you cannot avoid shuddering and screwing up your face under the shock, while contracted nerves send a shiver from the back of the head all down your spine.

We must therefore realize that it is impossible to separate the physical from the mental; the body from the mind; that they are dependent upon each other; that they are really one. The mental element, however, is always dominant. Our physical organism is governed by it. So that we actually make or mar our own health and destinies according to the ideas at work in our subconscious. I mean by this that we are absolutely free to implant whatever ideas we desire in our subconscious self, which is a never-flagging recorder, and those ideas determine the whole trend of our material, mental and moral being. It is just as easy to whisper into our receptive subconscious the idea of health, as it is to moan over our troubles; and those who do may be certain of the result, because, as I hope I have convinced them, it is based on nature's laws.

The next article by Professor Coue will appear shortly.

STATES TALK OF ECONOMY

MANY GOVERNORS PLAN DRASTIC CUT IN EXPENSES.

Kansas Substitutes Railway Shop Whistle for Saulte to New Executive, So Great Is Need of Saving.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Prohibition, government economy, movie censorship, good roads and sterilization of morons are among chief problems to be considered by legislatures in nearly two score states this month, according to information gathered today.

Economy, pledged by nearly all successful candidates in recent elections, in the chief issue before nearly all of the forty legislatures in session now or to meet before June.

Next to this lowering of expenses, good roads will get the most attention in western states, while movie censorship and prohibition fights will be staged in several eastern and midwestern states.

New oYrk, backed by the plans of newly elected New Jersey officials to hold a "dry" referendum, may memorialize congress to modify the prohibition law to permit light wines and beer.

Some Ohio legislators are fostering a bill to provide fine and jail sentences for the man who asks for or receives a drink. Governor Neff of Texas whose legislature meets January 9 will ask for drastic laws jailing a person found carrying liquor on the hip.

Sterilization of morons as a social necessity is also being urged before the Ohio body now in session.

Pennsylvania, Kansas, California and Nebraska will lead the fiscal reform wave with most drastic plans to cut every departmental appropriation "to the bone." Jonathan Davis, new governor of Kansas considers the need for lower state expenses and taxes so acute that no salute will be included in his inaugural. To save the cost of powder and expense of firing field pieces to Topeka, a similar number of blasts from a railway shop whistle will be substituted. Kansas may also consider modification or repeal of the industrial court law. California, Pennsylvania and Nebraska will also consider economy measures.

In Virginia a special session called for February 28 will consider a bond issue of $12,000,000 for good roads. Illinois, its legislature now in session, will attempt $100,000,000 appropriation for the same purpose. Michigan will also consider a special gasoline tax for good roads purposes.

Indiana law makers just convened, may tax gasoline, create a $10 a month soldier bonus and consider the American legion bill to abolish sports memorial day. The latter would prevent the 500-mile Indianapolis auto races from being held on this date. Colorado proposes to change capital punishment from hanging to electrocution. Iowa will attempt a budget system of state expenses. The North Dakota legislature will be asked by Governor Nestos to restore taxes to bank stocks and make an appropriation to advertise the possibilities of the state.

TRACTION COMPANY REPORT.

The Lincoln traction company filed its monthly report with the state railway commission Friday, showing that in the majority of the days of December it carried fewer passengers and collected less cash than in the corresponding days of 1921. The smallest loss was five passengers, and the largest was 10,000, which was on Sunday, the 31st. The loss in money ran from 55 cents to over $800. On several days it had such substantial gains as 4,000 passengers and $320 revenue. Its net loss for the month as compared with a year ago was 20,000 passengers. A ten day report of the Omaha & Council Bluffs street railway, filed at the same time, shows a loss of 4.29 per cent as compared with a corresponding period in 1921.

NORMAL BANK ELECTION.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Normal State bank of Lincoln was held at the bank on Tuesday. All of the former officers and directors were re-elected as follows:

Floyd Seybolt, president.
H. M. Westcott, vice president.
R. Unzicker, cashier.

Directors: Floyd Seybolt, H. G. Mahannah, T. C. Wilson, R. Unzicher and H. M. Westcott.

The officers reported no losses on any of the bank's securities. It was decided to leave the net earnings in the undivided profit account until such time as there was more favorable conditions or legislation as to the assessments to the guaranty fund.

Chief Justice McKinley, of the criminal court, in swearing in the January county grand jury at Chicago asked whether any were ku klux klansmen. In his charge to the jury he said that the court "intends to inoculate against, an insidious influence masquerading as 100 per cent American."

"YOUR SATISFACTION IS OUR SUCCESS"

GIVING BRYAN A BIG CHANCE

LEGISLATORS NOT CRITICAL OF HIS RECOMMENDATIONS.

There Is, However, an Apparent Lack of Understanding as to What the New Governor Wants in Legislation.

Those legislators who did not go home late Thursday or early Friday to train for the big lawmaking siege ahead of them, are giving considerable time to general discussion of the inaugural address of Governor Bryan. Many of them do not know exactly what the executive wants but are willing to give him plenty of opportunity to explain. Here are some stray impressions gathered from members lounging in hotel corridors and at the state house Friday morning:

The anti-McKelvie sentiment is not nearly so strong as had been anticipated. And there is, of course, a tendency to couple the name of the ex-governor with the code.

The code will not be repealed. Even the democratic members are not unanimously in favor of repeal. There are indications that in the house, there may be a democratic division on more issues than one.

Republicans and democrats alike are more interested in taxation than in any other subject. If changes can be made in the code which will reduce taxation without reducing efficiency, such proposals will find support.

Members expressed the belief that opposition to the code centers in the belief in some circles that it has increased taxes and placed too much power in the hands of the governor. Some claim to detect inconsistency on the part of the new governor in criticizing the present form of government while at the same time, asking for more power.

The addresses of the two governors resulted in more or less confusion. Some members expressed the wish that in the future the retiring governor and the incoming governor may get together and discuss the big issues before advising the legislature what to do.

Representative W. M. Barbour of Scottsbluff is not averse to modification of the code if there is any sort of change proposed which will strengthen rather than weaken the structure. He is for the gas tax, but believes that the automobile license should be reduced. He favors retention of the intangible feature of the revenue law, but believes some scheme should be worked out for the digging out of intangibles.

"Possibly every written instrument should be made a matter of record," he said. "In the matter of reaching bank deposits, it may be feasible to require a statement showing average deposits for the year. The assessor could call at the bank the same as the bank examiner calls."

Grant Mears, rerpesentative from Wayne and author of the capitol bill, wants more inside knowledge on what the governor seeks in way of appointive power.

Representative Gilmore of Adams has no fault with the code except to some few possible administrative details. He wants all activities under the code continued.

"I am not clear in my own mind as to Governor Bryan's position on the code," he said.

Representative Nelson of Pierce is open to conviction.

Elmer J. Lamb, Johnson county, would abolish the intangible feature of the revenue law. He would make municipal utility plans pay a tax and would cut out exemptions wherever possible.

"Not one person in one hundred understands the code, and not one in fifty knows how property is taxed," he said.

Mr. Mears expressed the opinion that there exists considerable sentiment for an executive council, but that the general belief is that such council should have appointive powers.

All Equal in Death.

The Egyptians, as is well known, did not, like most other nations, consign the bodies of their dead to destruction; they preserved them by embalming and celebrated their obsequies with extraordinary solemnity.

But these funeral honors were never bestowed unless in virtue of solemn and judicial decree. A court granted the warrant for every funeral. The character of the deceased was rigorously investigated, and if any criminal or improper conduct was proved, the customary honors were refused to him. If his life had been virtuous and exempt from all blame, a public panegyric was pronounced, and permission was granted for the usual embalming and obsequies.

The most singular circumstance attending this custom was that the sovereigns themselves, tho venerated during their lives with an almost superstitious regard, which forbade all scrutiny into their actions, were yet after death subjected to the same rigorous and impartial inquest with the meanest of their subjects.—Detroit News.

A motion to dismiss the original bill filed by the state of Massachusetts, challenging the constitutionality of the maternity act, was submitted in the supreme court.

Grain Market Opinions.

Hulburd Warren & Chandler: Prices are apt to decline further.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: With liquidation out of the way a better market should develop.

E. Lowitz & Co.: We look for lower levels.

Stein Alstrin: Further declines appear likely.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: Until receipts diminish and export demand revives we are not inclined to favor the buying side.

Thomson McKinnon: We favor the buying side of coarse grains on a scale down. Export developments and Liverpool cables will influence wheat values.

Riordan & Martin & Co.: We look for good buying on any further dip.

Logan & Bryan: Unless foreign news shows a marked change a further decline is likely.

J. E. Bennett & Co.: Strong bullish news is needed to check selling in wheat. We feel friendly to corn on the declines.—Lamson.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Grain traders have become bearish and expect lower prices especially in wheat. Selling yesterday was largely by the same houses that have sold for a week. Argentine competition is expected to be a factor in wheat from now on. Heavy selling in corn futures late in the day was based on a sharp break in cash premiums. While the decline has checked country offerings traders are not disposed to buy except on sharp breaks.

Export sales of wheat in all positions yesterday were approximately 750,000 bushels; corn 200,000. There were said to be bids in the market for approximately 600,000 bushels rye within 2 cents of a working basis.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Sentiment in wheat after the close yesterday was bearish. It was generally believed that leading interests that have been so prominent on the bull side of the market have given up the campaign and that some new and very strong incentive will be needed to attract new buying power. Wea[k]ness in wheat, it is expected, will be reflected in a mild way in all other grains. Heavy selling of May wheat in Chicago and Winnipeg by foreign interests suggests that increased offerings of cheaper Argentine wheat were being made abroad. Advices from Washington to a leading grain interest indicated the abandonment of foreign credit legislation with the purpose of passing farm credit legislation instead. The latter will benefit the farmers in a way but it will not provide a broader market for their products.

Flour business is reported as better as a result of the decline in wheat prices.—Lamson.

Indianapolis Livestock Market.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 5.—Hogs—Receipts, 12,000; market, steady; best heavies, $8.70@8.75; medium mixed, $8.75@8.80; common, choice, $8.80@8.90; bulk of sales, $8.75@8.85.

Cattle—Receipts, 1,000; market, slow; steers, $8.00@10.50; cows and heifers, $6.00@8.00.

Sheep—Receipts, 200; market, steady; top, $5.00.

Calves—Receipts, 800; market, active, 50c to $1 up; top, $15.00.

St. Joseph Livestock.

SOUTH ST. JOSEPH, Jan. 5.—Hogs—Few early sales good butchers to shippers at $8.40, about steady with yesterday's best time; packers going slow; no early sales. Average cost yesterday, $8.23; average weight, 233 pounds.

Cattle—Most classes about steady; first sort of veal calves around 50c lower, few loads beef steers and yearlings, early, $8.25@9.50; beef cows, mostly $4.50@6.25; veal calf top, early, $10.

Sheep: Most of the run not yet yarded; nothing sold early.

Foreign Exchange Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Foreign exchanges opened even. Sterling, $4.64½; francs, .0661½; lire, .0501; marks, .0117, off .0007.

Stock Market Opinions.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: We favor the long side on moderate recessions.

Block-Maloney & Co.: Further selling today will give a chance to buy.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: We feel some further decline is due.

Clark Childs & Co.: Equipments seem a purchase on any further decline.

Thomson McKinnon: Irregularity has been chiefly the result of profit taking on the bulges.

Logan & Bryan: Profit taking sales appear in large volume on bulges.

Simpson: For the present looks to me as tho the wheat and corn markets would be irregularly lower. The unsettled conditions abroad is having a depressing effect on grains causing a feeling of uneasiness.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Opening prices on the New York stock exchange today included: Studebaker 116, off ⅛; Southern Railway 24⅞, off ⅛; American Telephone 124, up ¼; California Pete 71⅛, up ⅜; Reading 78, off ½; Bethlehem Steel 63¼, off ½; Baldwin 136, off 1; U. S. Steel 107, off ¼; Anaconda 49⅛, off ⅜; Pan-American 87¼, off 1; Royal Dutch 11¼, off ¼; Asphalt 47¼, off ½; Northern Pacific 74⅜, off ¼; Cheasapeake & Ohio 71¾, up ⅜; Utah, 65; Union Pacific 138¼, off ½.

Despite the belligerent attitude adopted by France with regard to collecting its claims from Germany, Wall street felt confident that the termination of the Paris conference had not closed the door to a peaceful solution of the reparations problem.

This view tempered natural tendencies to sell stocks at the opening of the exchange today. Offerings in the general list were well absorbed. Initial recessions were shown by active industrials like U. S. Rubber, Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker and Baldwin, but losses were mostly confined to fractions. California Petroleum and several other stocks in which special influences were at work moved against the general trend.

THE JARR FAMILY.

By Roy L. McCardell.

"Seeing that you have been promised a raise of salary I think we should have come in a taxicab," remarked Mrs. Jarr, as they alighted from the street car near the most gilded of all the gilded Broadway jazz cabarets.

"By George, you're right!" exclaimed Mr. Jarr. "I never thought of it."

"And you must get yourself a new suit of evening clothes," said Mrs. Jarr, glancing from the attire of a howling swell who passed them. "Your dress waistcoat looks wrong somehow. After all these years the straight V-shape is going out."

"I got this society uniform before the war," mumbled Mr. Jarr, "and it sure is V-shaped not only front but back. There is an inverted V-shape cut to the waistcoat—where you added to the lining since I got stout. An inverted V-shape is cut into the back of the trousers, too, for the same reason."

"Still, they are very becoming to you—your evening clothes," said Mrs. Jarr, "and if they are not in the extreme of the latest style, it will be thought you are simply conservative in your tastes. I am told that Henry Ford and Thomas Edison wear ready-made clothes, and look at all the money they have! But you can get a new dress suit made to measure and have luncheon at a nice place every day, now that you have been promised a raise in salary."

"And we'll have a substantial dinner a la cabaret this very night," added Mr. Jarr.

They were now inside the cabaret restaurant, and a silent but none the less determined tug-of-war took place between Mr. Jarr and the coat-girl bandits.

A glance from Mrs. Jarr caused Mr. Jarr to capitulate and suffer one girl brigand to take his cane, another his gloves, another his hat and another his overcoat. These things they placed in separate and distant sections of the girl robbers' mahogany cave, while another bevy of robber maids was rending Mrs. Jarr's outer apparel from her.

"You shouldn't have started to fuss with these girls and insist that one take all your things," whispered Mrs. Jarr.

"Well, it's an outrage; I'll have to tip four different girls to get my things back!" snorted Mr. Jarr.

"What do you care?" said Mrs. Jarr. "You are promised a raise of salary!"

Now the headwaiter approached and appraised Mr. and Mrs. Jarr at a glance and immediately led them to an obscure corner behind a pillar near the waiters' door to the kitchen. Here, every time a waiter banged in one door and another waiter banged out of the other door, the Jarrs could get a typhoon gush of kitchen smells, many of them most unsavory.

"Can't you give us one of those small tables over there by the window?" asked Mr. Jarr, as the headwaiter paused nearby to sneer at him.

"They're all reserved," was the surly reply, as the headwaiter's eye rested in amused disdain on Mr. Jarr's evening attire of the early Woodrow Wilson period.

Mr. Jarr could have hired the gunmen right there and turned that golden lair of jazz and bootleggery into the scene of crime in the shade of the crabapple tree.

The Engagement Party.

By Emilie Hoffman.

"Letting the cat out of the bag" is a novel way of announcing an engagement. Cut a cardboard disc, paste or sew crepe paper or silk around edge of this to form a full bag. With wide ribbon catch in the fullness a few inches from the top. Form a handle and loops with the ribbon and some ribbon wire. Add a few flowers and have a small toy kitten perched in the top of bag with one paw over side of bag as tho getting out. This bag might serve as a favor holder or it will make an attractive centerpiece as it is.

When the engagement is announced on a birthday, as is so often the case, bluebirds, the accepted messengers of happiness and good luck, seems a most appropriate decoration scheme as this sentiment so nicely combines the two festive occasions.

Two or three wide streamers of ribbon or crepe paper, crossed at the center and falling over edge of table, can be used with or without a white table cover. Paint, applique or paste bluebirds, either at the end of or at intervals along each streamer. If you prefer paper table accessories you can get a set in the bluebird designs consisting of a table cover, napkins and plates.

There is a blue crepe paper from which the birds may be cut; paste two together with a slight padding between, attach to covered wire and suspend the birds in different lengths from the dome or have them poised among a floral arrangement on center of table. With wire attach one of the bluebirds on the edge of each bonbon or nut dish. Cut two tiny hearts from thin mat stock in whatever color scheme you have chosen. Use these as front and back covers for two paper hearts cut the same size. Tie the four hearts together with a tiny bow, write the names of the bride-elect on one of the inside paper hearts and that of the groom-to-be on the other and insert this engagement announcement into the bill of each bluebird on the small dishes.

If you cannot paint a bluebird on the place cards you can get the bluebird seals.

If you are using a flower scheme in the decorations make a small bouquet or a large single flower for each guest. Attach this to the end of a short cardboard tube, fill latter with rose petal confetti and paste a piece of tissue paper over the end, wind the tube with ribbon or paper, tie a bow around and you will have a pretty favor that will be just the thing to shower the bride-to-be or possibly the engaged couple.

A child, attired in bluebird costume, to present the favors might add a novel touch to the affair. These costumes are easily made of crepe paper under free instructions given where such supplies are sold.

A GAME OF FREEZE OUT

Story of Motion Picture.

The father of the motion picture chuckled quite as tho the amazing fact he had just stated was an ordinary incident of the day's work.

"It was in 1890 that we decided we were far enough advanced in our plans for the development of animated photography to warrant a special building for our work, but it was such an ungainly looking structure when it was done, and the boys had so much sport with it that we called it 'The Black Maria,'" said Thomas A. Edison, in describing the first cinema studio in America.

Eighteen hundred and ninety—which makes just thirty-two years as registering the entire commercial life of an industry that today ranks as the fourth greatest in the world!

"What first suggested the idea of the motion picture camera, Mr. Edison?"

The reply was as prompt as it was surprising.

"The photograph. I had been working for several years in my experiments for recording and reproducing sound, and the thought occurred to me that it should be possible to devise an apparatus to do for the eye what the phonograph was designed to do for the ear.

"That was the broad purpose, but how to accomplish that purpose was a problem which seemed more impossible the longer I studied it. It was in 1887 that I began my investigations, and photography, compared to what it is today, was in a decidedly crude state of development. Pictures were made by 'wet' plates, operated by involved mechanism. The modern dry films were unheard of."

"What do you consider the greatest mission of the motion picture today?"

"First, to make people happy—to bring more joy and cheer and wholesome good-will into this world of ours. And God knows we need it.

"Second to educate, elevate, and inspire. I believe that the motion picture is destined to revolutionize our educational system, and that in a few years it will supplant largely, if not entirely, the use of text-books in our schools. Books are clumsy methods of instruction at best, and often even the words of explanation in them have to be explained.

"I should say that on the average we get only about two per cent efficiency out of school books as they are written today. The education of the future, as I see it, will be conducted thru the medium of the motion picture, a visualized education, where it should be possible to obtain a one-hundred-per cent efficiency.

"People pay a dollar and a half to hear a noted lecturer rather than take the trouble to read the same lecture in printed form. And after they go home they forget most of what he has had to say. Most of us today will go any length to avoid the labor of concentrating, of working with our own brains when we can find somebody else or some other way to do it for us. We don't like to take off our coats, roll up our sleeves, and wade in for ourselves. That is why so many people go to lectures or the movies rather than to read books.

"But, unlike a lecture, which leaves no physical impression, the motion picture has tremendous possibilities for the training and development of the memory. There is no medium for memory-building as productive as the human eye.

"That is another basic reason for the motion picture in the school. It will make a more alert and more capable generation of citizens and parents. You can't make a trained animal unless you start with a puppy. It is next to impossible to teach an old dog new tricks.

"I do not believe that any other single agency of progress has the possibilities and permanent good to humanity that I can see in the motion picture. And those possibilities are only beginning to be touched."—McClure's.

Deadlock Must Be Broken Or Europe Will Collapse

A situation fraught with inconceivable menace to Europe and the rest of the world is rapidly approaching the final crisis, all the dispatches from Europe agree. Certain officials do not hesitate to say that the Entente will end if France takes military measures before the conclusion of the discussions in the Premiers' Conference at Paris.

From the administration at Washington comes the statement quoted in the New York Herald that the reparations question is at the root of financial trouble in Europe. In addition, this government has intimated that until the reparations are settled on a reasonable basis, it is idle to expect that any aid the United States desires to extend can avail. And American newspapers hold that the deadlock on reparations is a big obstacle to the resumption of prosperity here, and hence affects every one of us.

What then, is a "reasonable basis" for reparations and why all the difference of opinion even among former allies? That some impatient Americans appear tired of hearing about the matter, has been evident for three years, but that we need to gain some comprehensive view of the facts is more and more obvious. Remarks like "Why don't they all get back on the job?" or "If they'd use a pick and shovel more and a typewriter and a megaphone less, we'd feel more like canceling debts," may express the view of much of our press comment, but do not help the problem.

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week presents France's claims. It shows the actual damage which France suffered by the war; what France has done since the armistice to help herself; how much Germany has paid in reparations. The information in this article was obtained by the editor of THE LITERARY DIGEST in Paris from the French Government and French press-reports, supplemented by information supplied by the American Committee for Devastated France, and from the French Consulate in New York. It is of the most definite and authoritative character obtainable and must be considered if one would understand the reparations question which is the core of all the conferences, negotiations, and disputes now agitating Europe and America. The article is profusely illustrated with half-tone photographs, charts, and maps. Other news-features in the January 6th DIGEST are:—

"Send 'em away with a Laugh!"

Since time immemorial the master showmen of history made this their policy. It is the hobby of toastmasters. Friends employ it religiously. Salesmen have coined it into dollars. In every walk of life a touch of humor at parting creates anticipation for another meeting. In the great social intercourse of humanity laughter has ever been the universal medium of good fellowship.

"Fun From the Press" starts with a laugh—and ends in a riot of mirth. The pet productions of the world's cleverest jokesmiths are collected and presented in this one little feature. The funniest jokes, the keenest wit, and the best banter on the issues of the day make it irresistible. See one reel and you'll not care to miss another. It's new every week. MINE PARLEY TO BREAK UP

Indications Are That Miners and Operators of Bituminous Districts Cannot Agree.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—After a two days' battle miners and operators of the fifteen bituminous coal producing states failed to get together on a new agreement and the conference was expected to break up today.

Failure of the conference to negotiate a new contract to take the place of the present one, which expires March 31, carried the threat of another coal strike.

The final split came when the miners flatly rejected the operators' proposal that wage scales be made independently by each of the fifteen districts. The miners insist on the four-state agreement.

Men and Things

Governor Bryan is optimistic He suggests, as his substitute for the code, an executive council to determine administrative policies and himself to name all heads and employes. Then he asks the republican legislature to enact it into law. Will the republicans do it? Not in a thousand biennniums, if politics remains politics He points out that three of the five councilors will be republicans, but they will regard this as giving them the shell while he holds the substance. Mr. Bryan's proposition is open to the very serious objection, as a matter of business administration, and one that he has raised truthfully in the past, that it provides the makings for a powerful political machine run at state expense.

It does not require much prophetic vision to outline what the republicans will say about the proposal. They will say, for one thing, that it is not a substantial compliance with Mr Bryan's campaign pledge to redistribute these code departments among the executive state officers. They will say that the legislature makes administrative policies and directs, by law, how they shall be carried into effect. A council of executive officers that had only to determine administrative policies will have little to do because they can move only within the narrow confines fixed by law. They will doubtless put up to him a real division of the code departments, or such as pass legislative approval, among these executive state officers That's our guess.

Both the old and the new governor recommend the adoption of a state income tax. This ought to insure its passage. The principle of the income tax is sound, and the only duty devolving upon the legislature is to see that it is so drawn that it does not impose hardships upon anyone There is much to be said in favor of the idea of making everybody pay an income tax, small tho it should be on the small earners, because it gives every person a stake and an interest in their government.

Very little surprise will be entertained if the legislature abolishes the party circle. The only benefit that attaches to its retention on the ballot is that it saves the time of the citizen who votes a straight ticket, yellow dogs and all, or who is too indolent to find out for himself the respective qualifications of the various candidates It is an admirable instrument in the hands of those who desire to control and direct the less intelligent vote of the state. It enables them to get results when, in order to accomplish the election or the defeat of one or more men, it sends out word to put a cross in the party circle. Its abolition would force men and women to cast intelligent ballots or deprive unintelligence of its power.

Taking off the party label is a different proposition, and it is quite likely that the legislature is not ready to take so important a step, more particularly because legislators, being the direct beneficiaries of the use of the party label on the election ballot, are likely to think its retention more important than the rank and file of the citizens. The cities and villages of Nebraska no longer use party labels when it comes to choosing their governing officers, but in a voting district as wide as a county or a state, where the facilities for acquainting one's self about the qualifications and standing of voters are meager, there is a demand for a label that guarantees the quality and purity of the political goods offered.

The effort made by the democrats to rob the republicans of their numerical superiority in the house represented one of those day-dreams of the politicians whose better sense has always denied to them the possibility of its realization. The fallacy of it lay in the assumption that all the vice there was in the situation lay with the republicans and all the virtue lay with the democratic members. The truth is that when they began to divide the republicans on other than a party line they found their own forces disintegrating to reassemble along the new line.

Medical Help.

There are so many kinds of docs, I scarec know what to do, when fell disease my system rocks, the rheumatiz or flu, the measles or the chickenpox, and I am sad and blue. One doctor feeds us hefty pills that have a mothball taste, and liquid medicine he spills inside one's bulging waist; his potion either cures or kills, and does the trick in haste. Another laughs at pills and dope in loud and strident tones, he says when sick our only hope is kneading of the bones; he is a man of breadth and scope, and vice-like hands he owns One doctor is a crank on air, fresh air, he says, will heal; for spavined limbs or falling hair, fresh air and linseed meal; for ailment, anywhere, ozone's his endless spiel. "uSggestion," says another doc, "will sound disease's knell; if you have cylinders that knock, come, see me where I dwell; I'll spring suggestions in a flock, and they will make you well" Some doctors keep within their shacks sword, cleaver, saw and lance, and when we've spasms in our backs, and to their wigwams prance, they want to cleave us with an ax, collecting in advance. The doctrs have so many schools I scarce know which to choose, when fever heats or ague cools my weary bones and thews, so many pills, so many tools, so many curlycues!
